THE DAY CHRIST DIED

By JIM BISHOP

(A Condensation of The Book)

INSTALLMENT 6

It was past midnight now, and the eyes of the fishermen were heavy and their feet were slow. Besides, their Lord had said so much that their brains ached with remembering.

They did not complain because they sensed that this night they might receive the last of many lessons from the Messiah and they knew that they would have to remember, before they could apply the word. These men were very human. Grief for the suffering and impending death of his beloved Jesus must have stunned young John, just as the humility of his brother James surely prevented appreciation of his own adequacy for the job ahead.

Soon they were underneath the cemetery outside the wall, and in the darkness the sepulchers and the little ossuaries looked like so many broken teeth. Near here they crossed the stone bridge over the Brook Cedron and took the road on the far side toward the little gethsemane where they would sleep.

When they came abreast of the three great mausoleums—one of which was built to the memory of Absalom—which had been standing gaunt and friendless for 500 years, Jesus glanced briefly at them. He had condemned memorials to the dead a long time ago. Now He stopped again.

'Love One Another'

"This is My commandment." Again He said, "Love one another as I love you. No one can give greater proof of his love than by laying down his life for his friends. You are My friends." He looked around at the wan, bearded faces—"provided you do what I command you."

Surely, this often-repeated commandment to love had now taken root in the Apostles' hearts. It would not only sustain them during the hours that lay just ahead, but, of course, become the central theme and identification of Christians throughout the ages.

They were 200 yards from the little olive press in the miniature valley which separates Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives. For some time now, since they had crossed the brook, they had been bearing away from the city. At the gethsemane, the

BECOMES HEIR

It's a Boy For Gracie And Prince

MONTE CARLO (AP)—Princess Grace of Monaco today gave birth to her first son—the new heir to the throne of the principality of Monaco.

The royal palace said the baby weighed 8½ pounds. He will be christened Albert Alexandre Louis Pierre.

The baby displaces his 13-month-old sister, Princess Caroline, in the succession to his father, Prince Rainier, Monaco's 31st sovereign.

The boom of the 101-gun salute—it would have been only 21 for a girl—set off wild rejoicing in the 367-acre principality on the French Riviera.

The births of both Caroline and Albert provided Monaco's 2,500 citizens with ample cause for rejoicing. Barring tragedy, they ensure the survival of the advantages of living in an independent, income-tax-free state that has no compulsory military service.

If Rainier were to die without a successor, the pocket principality, rolling in wealth from its gambling casino, would be annexed by France under a 1919 treaty.

Few Fundamentals

He made no more pronouncements until He reached the stone caves with the big rotary presses, full of the odor of old oil. During this walk, He had been concerned, in the main, with imparting to His leaders the few basic fundamentals of His New Testament. These 11 would, with proper roots, produce new branches for the teachings of their Master, and they would impart His blessings and His sacraments.

It was complex and burdensome for these simple, believing men to try to understand these truths, and they were comforted to know that after Jesus had gone, the Holy Ghost would come to them and repose within them without their knowledge; that He would reveal many things to them and even sharpen their memories so that the words of Jesus would come back truly and clearly.

They turned off the little road near the juncture of the highway to Jericho, and moved easily in the moonlight. —Continued on Page 15

DEATH PACT CLAIMED

Beauty Queen Shot 6 Times by Lover

BEAVER, Pa. (AP)—A 25-year-old mill worker says he pumped six bullets into his beauty queen girl friend because they had a secret pact that "one of us was going to die" if their romance broke up.

Theodore Pallow, on Friday, walked into this western Pennsylvania community and said: "I just killed a girl."

Police found the body of 21-year-old Miss Rosalie Leis at the foot of a tree not far from her home.

The comely blonde won several local beauty contests and in 1955 was runner-up to Miss Pennsylvania in the Miss Universe competition.

Pallow, estranged from his wife and seven-months-old child, faces a murder charge. He said his illicit romance "broke up my home" but "I loved Rosalie very much."

Pallow said he felt his relationship with Miss Leis was breaking up. He went to Miss Leis' home early Friday morning, and the couple walked down a lonely lane where Pallow said he shot her once.

He said she fell to her knees and begged: "Kill me quick." Then he fired five more bullets from the .22 revolver.

9,000 Jam Auditorium To Hear PM

John D. Promises Bill of Rights

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Correspondent

VANCOUVER—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker addressing the biggest and noisiest meeting of his campaign to date disclosed here Thursday that the justice department is considering a draft of a bill of rights. It will be first submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada.

He aroused tremendous enthusiasm at the mass meeting and for the first time this campaign encountered a barrage of heckling and boos. There were more than 8,000 jammed into the Forum and about 1,000 more were turned away, with about 200 remaining to listen to the address, over loudspeakers outside the main hall.

The repeated jeers and shouts designed to embarrass the prime minister and throw him off his stride only added to the excitement and entertainment for the huge crowd. Mr. Diefenbaker with the benefit of loudspeakers out-shouted the hecklers.

ANSWERS PICKED

"I picked the ones I wanted to answer. That's the secret. It adds to a meeting," he said laughingly after he returned to his hotel suite.

The prime minister explained after the mass meeting that the bill of rights would be submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada in the form of a reference. In this way it will be left to the highest court in Canada to determine the subjects which could be placed in a federal bill of rights without infringing provincial constitutional powers.

"How about Duplessis?" a heckler shouted. "He's your pal."

The prime minister attracted a crowd of about 3,000 more than attended Liberal leader Hon. L. B. Pearson's meeting in the same Forum at Vancouver. The huge audience at the Diefenbaker rally gave him more applause—interrupting him nearly 50 times—while the crowd also gave Mr. Diefenbaker more boos and heckled him more often than Mr. Pearson's crowd.

There was a carnival atmosphere at the opening of the Conservative rally. A lively orchestra and three vocalists

PEARSON BACKS COYNE STAND

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (BUP)—Liberal Leader Lester Pearson today supported Bank of Canada governor James Coyne's statement Thursday that an easy money policy if applied would harm Canada's economy.

Pearson said Coyne gave a good objective analysis of the situation and his report entirely disposed of wild Conservative statements on the consequences of a "tight money policy."

PICKETS WOULD-RISK EXPLOSION

Teamsters Could Delay Ripple Blast

A delay in setting off the earth's biggest non-atomic explosion at Ripple Rock, scheduled for April 5, could be caused by the teamsters' union.

Teamster official Joe Whiteford in Vancouver, said Thursday the union intends picketing the project as part of its contract fight with the Heavy Construction Association of British Columbia. The blast would be delayed only if workers employed in preparing it honored the pickets.

Looks like it'll be a reverse twist, with th' Coyne keepin' th' politicians toatin'.

I s'pose, strictly speakin', this non-union electricity we're gittin' is "hot."

What we need is more schoolin', t' help figger out how t' pay th' school taxes.

INDONESIA NAVY SHELLS REBEL HARBOR PADANG

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—Indonesian Navy ships shelled rebel-held Padang Harbor today, injuring several people and destroying some houses before being driven off by shore batteries, Padang rebel radio said tonight.

The radio said the battle for Pakanbaru is still on, and that two ships bringing government reinforcements up the Siak River had been sunk by bazooka-fire.

No Tight Money Policy—Coyne

Bank of Canada Chief Drops Bombshell Into Election Fight

OTTAWA (CP)—The head of Parliament's non-political Bank of Canada has dropped a potentially explosive political issue into the March 31 general election campaign.

Governor James E. Coyne, of the central bank, which has a big hand in shaping Canadian monetary policy, says there has been no such thing as a "tight money" program so far as the bank is concerned.

The $50,000-a-year bank chief said this in his annual report to Progressive Conservative Finance Minister Donald Fleming, one of the government spokesmen who have stated that damage was done to the Canadian economy by a Liberal "tight money" policy before the election of last June 10. The report was made public Thursday.

TALKING POINT

In the current political warfare, Conservatives have been claiming that it was their easing of such a policy in late summer that staved off a more severe recession than the one now hitting Canada.

Mr. Coyne, an appointee of the previous government, does not refer directly to Conservative knocks at "tight money" in his report for 1957. He states, rather, that "an impression seems to have arisen" that the money supply was shrinking. Actually it was increasing, he said, but despite this the impression of "tight money" arose because of unusually large demand for money.

Last month, Liberal James Sinclair, former fisheries minister and now the chief financial critic for his party in Parliament, suggested in a speech that the Coyne report was being concealed.

"Hidden," he said, "is the annual report of the Bank of Canada."

New Worlds of Potential Power Opened by Underground A-Blast

NEW YORK (CP)—A "little, tiny" atomic bomb exploded underground last September crushed 400,000 tons of rock and made a mountain jump six inches. The Times says in a Washington dispatch.

It quotes Dr. Willard F. Libby of the Atomic Energy Commission as telling a Senate foreign-relations subcommittee that the test explosion showed:

Radioactivity from underground blasts could be sealed in so that surrounding land is not contaminated; enormous quantities of earth could be moved quickly; deep harbors could be made by controlled blasts; and old oil fields might be opened up again.

In a Los Angeles dispatch, The Times says the AEC is pressing for frequent underground nuclear blasts "that will bring immeasurable benefits to national policy, the general public and private industry as well as to atomic weapon development."

It says such underground explosions could create natural reservoirs in sections now hopelessly arid and free oil deposits now inaccessible.

The September blast was under a mesa in the Nevada proving ground.

The electrical impulse will ignite a fuse leading down the tunnel and up within the peaks of the rock to the explosive. Engineers estimate the peaks will blow just 1/80th of a second apart.

To get maximum effect on the rock, the day must be clear with low pressure and low tide occurring simultaneously. Otherwise the pressure of the

Effect on Taxes, Homes Unknown

By PETE LOUDON

Costs of operating Greater Victoria schools this year will increase by $734,510 to a new high of $5,887,671—a 14 per cent increase.

The estimates were presented to district municipal councils this morning.

Whether the increase will be reflected in local tax boosts, or whether a greater share of costs will be accepted by the provincial government, is still unknown.

Proposed changes in the basis of provincial-municipal cost-sharing are before the B.C. legislature.

These changes, contained in the new Public Schools Act, provide for increased grants from the province, as well as increases in the basic contribution by municipalities.

STANDSTILL

Until the amount of the grants is made known, municipal and school board financing is at a standstill.

In a letter accompanying the estimates, school board secretary-treasurer T. L. Christie told each council:

"... estimated revenue and apportionment of costs to the component parts of the school district will be presented as soon as the necessary information on the new legislation is available."

Total 1958 expenditures are shown as $5,887,671, as compared to $5,153,161 in 1957 estimates.

Last year, almost half the total, $2,624,976, was raised by local taxation. Victoria paid

50.50 per cent, Esquimalt 5.20 per cent, Oak Bay 15.60, Saanich 26.76 and the unorganized area within the school district 1.94 per cent.

MORE STUDENTS

Mr. Christie said increases in school costs are attributable to increased numbers of students and teachers, plus an increased teacher salary rate, (about 6 per cent.)

The board's building program also has increased debt services costs.

He pointed out student enrolment this year is increased by 1,337 for a total of 17,869. There are 40 more teachers on the payroll.

A 5-per cent salary increase was granted administration staff, and superannuation costs have increased. For the first time, the board is also contributing to a medical health plan for employees.

UP $400,000

Teacher salaries are up $400,000—about half this increase being due to the increases in staff. The rise in operation and normal in-keeping with expansion of the school system, Mr. Christie added.

He said the school board is prepared to meet with any municipal council in the area to discuss the schedule of costs.

Girl Tried to Shoot Officer, Shot Down

TOPPENISH, Wash. (AP)—A rookie patrolman shot and killed a 16-year-old girl in a crowded bus station Thursday as she fumbled with the safety catch on an automatic pistol aimed at him.

Witnesses said Sandra Lingscheid, only child of a farm couple living on a Columbia Basin irrigation project at Eltopia, Wash., ignored three warnings to throw down her gun.

Two 38 slug hit her in the chest. The girl and a companion, Janice Teel, also 16, of Pasco, Wash., had been stopped as runaways as they alighted from a bus.

Patrolman Richard Stevens, 33, told Police Chief Earl Phillips he had no recourse but to shoot the girl, whose gun posed a threat to the some 50 persons crowded into the small bus depot in this south-central Washington city.

Stevens said he had tried to get close to the girl, but failing that had "acted as any police officer would."

Group Studies 60 MPH Limit On Highways

Appointment of a special group to investigate the possibility of increasing the speed limit on some B.C. highways to 60 miles an hour was disclosed today by Highways Minister Gaillard.

The minister said the committee is headed by deputy highways minister Evan Jones, and includes other members of his department as well as representatives of the RCMP and B.C. Automobile Association.

The minister said he is taking a "cautious" approach to raising the speed limit in some districts.

"But if we can do it with the same amount of safety as today—okay."

NORMAN CRIBBENS IN THE LEGISLATURE

Randolph Harding, the good-humored CCF member for Kaslo-Slocan, has a problem on his mind.

He is wondering (already) whether the British Columbians of 50 years hence will be asking:

"What was a Social Credit?"

Mr. Harding is so concerned for the people of 2008 A.D. that he wants the legislature to keep a Hansard (verbatim) record of speeches so that they may be read and studied by the people of that advanced era—which may well include pneumatic, weather-proof clothes and a five-day week-end.

If we had a Hansard, said Mr. Harding, people 50 years from now would be able to learn about Social Credit—and why!

Premier Bennett, of course, could not miss this opportunity for a profound statement aimed at the historians of 2008 A.D.

"This period will live in the annals of the province as an era of progress and development."

He did not feel, however, that the historians of 50 years hence needed any Hansard to assist them. The government's record of achievement would be a standing monument to its foresight and wisdom.

Mr. Harding refused to be overawed by this grandiloquence. He insisted that, if the people of 2008 could read Hansard reports of speeches made under Social rule, they might get a glimmer of what it was all about.

Social Credit J. Donald Smith, Victoria, broke ranks with the government and voted for a Hansard.

Western Arms Proposal Fogs Summit Reds Say

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia today accused the Western powers of trying to "distract attention" from an East-West summit conference by seeking the resumption of disarmament negotiations within the United Nations.

Western 'Big Two' To Discuss 'Summit'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan will meet here in June to co-ordinate Western planning for a summit conference with Russia.

The White House announced Thursday that the meeting will be held June 9-10. By that time the issue of whether to hold a summit conference will likely be settled, officials believe, and most of them privately say they are sure there will be a conference.

Other subjects expected to come up in the Eisenhower-Macmillan sessions include co-operation between the United States and Britain in atomic energy developments, U.S. supplies of nuclear missiles for British bases, Middle Eastern problems, East-West trade and a review of conditions in the Far East.

NIGHT ROAMERS
Nocturnal in their habits, raccoons are seldom seen outside their dens in daylight.

Two girls and a young man provided music and songs.

Several men and women, who said they were out of work, paraded around with placards before the meeting began. They were inside the outside of the Forum. One placard read, "I voted for Dief and have nothing but grief"; another read, "Too many men are unemployed in beautiful British Columbia."

But they were greatly outnumbered by the pro-Diefenbaker paraders who carried signs reading "Carry On, John."

"Keep in step," and "Return a strong Diefenbaker government."

The prime minister referred in his remarks on a great national development plan, to the proposed development of the Columbia River. He recalled that when he was in Vancouver last year he had outlined what would be his policy on the Columbia.

TO ACT WITH B.C.
That policy had not changed. It remained as he had outlined it and was now the policy of his government. He said his administration is prepared to co-operate with the B.C. government in the proposed development project. It would be a scheme of joint co-operation between Ottawa and the provincial government.

In the Vancouver area among the 10 seats the Progressive Conservatives had four in the last House, Social Credit two, CCF three and Liberals one. The Conservatives are convinced after the meeting Thursday that they will take some seats from Social Credit and the CCF.

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that his campaign had "caught fire" in Vancouver in the last general election. Vancouver had produced the record crowd when his 1957 campaign produced the upset that turned out the 22-year-old Liberal government.

He said he would give the issues of the campaign. "What have we done?" he asked.

"Yes, what have you done," shouted back a heckler. Momentarily it caused the prime minister to pause. It was the first serious heckling he has had this campaign.

He said when his government took office it found a policy of tight money strangling the economy. It had resulted in unemployment. What have we done? was his rhetorical question.

"Nothing," was shouted from several sections of the forum. "Shut up," others shouted at the hecklers.

His government had acted he said. It had set in motion an increasing housing program. It had cut taxes.

"We removed many from the tax rolls," he said. "You removed many from jobs," shouted a heckler.

"We eased tight money," said Mr. Diefenbaker. "We've still got it," shouted a heckler. The prime minister said his government had also acted to slow down immigration.

"No one is going to suffer as a consequence of unemployment as long as I am prime minister," he pledged solemnly.

"We're suffering right now," another heckler shouted. But the applause greeting the prime minister's pledge drowned out the heckler.

Teachers Planning 'Deluge Protest'

A "deluge protest"—flooding of local legislative members with objections against sections of the proposed new Public Schools Act—was planned Thursday by Greater Victoria Teachers' Association.

An emergency meeting at S. J. Willis Junior High drew an estimated 400 members. Called on short notice, the meeting was unable to formally pass resolutions, but agreement on the proposed course of action was general.

FINES
The teachers oppose a clause which provides fines for anyone "trying to obstruct employment" or trying to dissuade a teacher from seeking a job in any district.

This would rule out "blacklisting" as is now being carried out in several B.C. school districts, including Greater Victoria. When no agreement could be reached on 1958 wage negotiations, teachers advised fellow workers in other parts of the province to avoid seeking work here.

U.K. Tories Lose Second Seat to Labor

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, shaken by his government's second defeat at the polls within a month, faced renewed Laborite demands today for him to "get out" and a threatened rank-and-file revolt among his own ruling Conservatives.

The Conservatives lost a seat to Labor in a key by-election Thursday in the "marginal" Kelvingrove constituency of Glasgow.

Just a month ago they lost the Lancashire cotton town of Rochdale—also to Labor.

Defeat was attributed chiefly to a nationwide clamor against the Conservative-sponsored Rent Act, which faces millions of Britons with sharply increased rents or possible eviction from their homes.

QUEEN MOTHER ELIZABETH

'A Wonderful Woman'

LONDON (Reuters) — Two London newspapers describe Queen Mother Elizabeth as a "wonderful woman" in welcoming her back after a delay-plagued return journey from Australia and New Zealand.

The Daily Mail and Daily Sketch speak in glowing terms of the mother of Queen Elizabeth after her return here Thursday from her 25-800-mile round-the-world trip, during which she stopped at Montreal and Vancouver.

She arrived here 2½ days late on the last stage of her journey from Perth, Western Australia. She flew from Malta in a British Overseas Airways Britannia after her Australian Qantas Super-Constellation broke down for the third time.

Qantas announced here that it will hold a private inquiry into the "chapter of unfortunate and unforeseeable mishaps" to the American-built plane which delayed the Queen Mother's return home.

The Daily Mail comments: "How many of us, traveling across the world in an airplane which had suffered two mishaps, would not gladly hop into the fine modern machine sent especially to bring us home?"

"The Queen Mother refused. She stuck to her Australian aircraft.

"Anyone who knows the disturbing effect of anything wrong in the air knows also that it takes courage to carry on as she did."

The Daily Sketch declares: "We are glad to have her back. Proud of her stoic endurance in the face of plane delays and breakdowns. Proud of a wonderful woman."

Tory Employment Plans 'Hoax' Pearson Charges

By The Canadian Press

The nation's political leaders Thursday sought votes for the March 31 federal election in widely-separated parts of Canada.

While Prime Minister John Diefenbaker was in Vancouver Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson said in Halifax that Mr. Diefenbaker's works program to ease unemployment is a "hoax."

CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell said over television from Winnipeg that the Progressive Conservatives and Liberals are playing "political football" with the unemployment situation.

Social Credit Leader Solon Low moved back into his own riding of Peace River in north-western Alberta.

TUG FREED FROM REEF

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 55-foot tug was freed late Thursday, 12 hours after it crashed onto a reef in Kingcome Inlet, 200 miles north of here.

Owners of the tug, D. H. McDougall, said the craft had been "jammed solidly" on the reef but was not damaged.

The four crewmen were taken off by a small boat from a nearby logging camp and the tug was pulled out by two other tugs, Sea Breeze III and Young Hustler I.

Organization For Foster Parents Seen

An organization to bring foster parents together for discussion of "points of view and standards on methods of helping children" may be formed in Victoria, David Woodsworth, director of the Family and Children's Service, reports.

The organization would serve a very valuable purpose for "professional" foster parents, he said, "who take a deep interest in helping children to develop and grow."

Mr. Woodsworth said there are nearly 150 foster homes in this area which take charge of some 300 children each year.

More than 50 foster parents met at Spencerhouse Tuesday night to see a Child Welfare League of America film "The Deep Well," which deals with the problems of children in foster homes and treatment centres.

"This was the first time in a couple of years that we have tried to get closer to the foster parents," Mr. Woodsworth said, "and the meeting created a lot of interest."

$100,000 DAMAGES TO BOYS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two small boys who lost their parents and brother in a traffic accident will share a $100,000 damage settlement.

John Shoobridge, five, receives $38,438 compensation for injuries and death of his parents, and his brother, David, two, receives $40,325 on the same grounds.

The settlement, approved Thursday by Mr. Justice Norman Whitaker, also provides $11,237 for hospital and medical expenses and $10,000 for legal costs.

The action arose out of a traffic accident near Aberdeen, Wash., a year ago, when John Emanuel Shoobridge, a Richmond, B.C., plumber, his wife and their three-year-old son, Roy Norman, were killed. Their auto collided with a truck-trailer travelling on the wrong side of the road.

Stimulant and Cure

THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT indicates officially that it is prepared, if the recession does not lift soon, to cut taxes sharply. This policy would be just as important to Canadians as to Americans. For business conditions here will be governed mainly not by any Canadian policy but by the state of the American economy.

The recession affecting the entire free world originated in the United States after an inflationary boom. Nations like Canada selling directly in the American market immediately felt a fall in demand. Nations selling in the world market felt a fall in the price of many raw materials.

Britain, on the other hand, profited by the reduced price of its imported materials while the price of its exported manufactures did not decline so far.

But these favorable "terms of trade," as the economists call them, must be a temporary advantage for Britain and a few other countries. None can long escape the downdraft of American business. And there will be no general updraft in the world economy until American business recovers its former momentum.

Hence any policy adopted in the United States to cure conditions at home will be a world policy in its results, good or bad. In planning such a policy the American Government, while postponing any final decision, seems to share the views of Mr. Pearson in Canada. He holds that a public works program, though desirable, cannot possibly produce results soon or large enough. The quickest and largest stimulant available, he believes, is a tax cut which not only will put more money into the public's hands but will create a psychological climate of confidence, a desire to spend.

But it is quite certain that any such measures, in Canada or elsewhere, can be nothing more than a brief stimulant unless the United States is highly prosperous and world demand at a high level.

A parallel program of tax cuts in the United States and Canada would go a long way towards North American prosperity but not all the way. The continental economy is gravely distorted by an inflationary cost-price spiral. It requires readjustments which are certain to be painful for some people and already have caused widespread unemployment. Above all, the economy requires an end to the continuing rise in retail prices and the resulting resistance of buyers.

Still, tax cuts and budget deficits are desirable under present conditions, just as higher taxes and surpluses are desirable under conditions of boom. Everything will depend on the timing, the size, the area and the psychological effect of the tax cuts.

Hence Canadians, while making their own decision between two political parties at home will watch with almost equal interest the developments now under way in Washington. Clearly some kind of turning point is immediately ahead of us. Either business will begin to recover without governmental stimulation a few weeks from now or a stimulant will be applied by one means or another.

For Constant Vigilance

IT IS ENTIRELY APPROPRIATE that in a country which pioneered in free speech there should be periodic reviews of the current situation. Thus two such stalwart champions—and beneficiaries—of free speech as The Times of London and the Manchester Guardian are raising voices of warning and complaint.

Sir William Haley, editor of The Times, sees a threat today to public rights such as "freedom of information, freedom of dissent, freedom from victimization and freedom to exert influence."

Many responsible people, he says are trying to stifle public opinion in the belief that "it is not good for the public to know too much." Oddly enough, he adds, "often the public seems to acquiesce in the proposition."

Obviously, it is the duty of the press to fight both these trends.

The Manchester Guardian, discussing Haley's comments, names as one encroachment on freedom the tendency to stricter interpretation of the doctrine of contempt of court, including practical restrictions placed on the circulation of foreign publications in Britain.

An even more "ominous symptom," says the Guardian, arises from pressures exercised "by the cult of public relations." The paper cites briefing of reporters with "off the record" information as a device to silence criticism of official sources. Politicians' appeals for "trust" should also be treated with suspicion says the Guardian.

It is a not uncommon experience for a political reporter to become so loaded with news that he cannot use, because it has been told to him in confidence, that he loses his effectiveness. The position becomes increasingly intolerable when some of the information could have been obtained from other sources in the normal processes of coverage. A definite possibility of news blackout then exists.

The point raised by The Times editor, that the public often seems amenable to the suggestion that it is not good for it to know too much, is not peculiar to Britain. Perhaps because of two long sieges of necessary wartime censorship within a generation, there is a general tendency to be content with much less than a full knowledge of public affairs and the doings of public servants.

That is a tendency which the press must oppose. To do less would be to set the stage for authoritarianism.

The Oregonian Spells It Out

THE INFLUENTIAL PORTLAND Oregonian has no illusions about the United States import curbs applied to Canadian oil delivered to the Pacific Coast.

It states a case with which British Columbians will whole-heartedly agree in the following terse editorial: "The U.S. State Department has coldly rejected a Canadian note of January 15 protesting import curbs on oil to the West Coast. In doing so it did not even try to explain its absurd contention that U.S. security requires such import limits."

"The chief effect of establishing the import limit for the West Coast is to reduce the supply of crude oil from the Alberta wells by pipeline to three refineries in the State of Washington. These refineries were established under urging of the U.S. Government to provide an inland, protected source of supply, from Canadian fields, which would not be so vulnerable in wartime as sea transport. Yet the State Department uses the flimsy excuse of 'security' for reducing the imports."

"As we said before on this page, the American position makes no sense. It flaunts a Canadian-American agreement and a NATO agreement. It is almost certainly the result of pressure from certain U.S. oil interests who have no concern, apparently, for the good of the Pacific Northwest or our relations with Canada."

The opinion of The Oregonian will be appreciated all the more by Canadians because the newspaper circulates in the centre of the United States area most directly concerned with West Coast oil imports from this country.

Nutty As a Doorknocker

THE OTHER DAY IN THE British House of Commons a member rose to draw attention to the purchase tax as it concerns doorknockers and nutcrackers.

Doorknockers are exempt. Nutcrackers pay 15 per cent.

But British nutcracker manufacturers have devised a neat way of beating the tax. Nutcrackers and doorknockers are basically just two bars of metal hinged together. So the manufacturers have bored two small holes in one bar of the nutcracker, making it an article which may be nailed or screwed to the door, hence a doorknocker and tax-free.

With very little ingenuity the purchaser can refuse to attach it to the door and use it for cracking nuts. But this is devious. There are simpler subtleties. A clever host, receiving guests on occasions where nuts will be served, need only single out the visitor with the bone-crushing handshake. He then may place that guest next to the nut bowl and allow him to prove his strength by hand-cracking nuts for everyone—and hope incidentally that the bone-crusher bruises his thumbs and fingers.

Or the host, if he is without malice, may buy nuts without shells. As a third option, the host may invite only those guests who have artificial dentures. To them nut-cracking, at most, has only academic interest.

SALE HO!

By B. A. TOBIN

From Drummers to Tom-Toms

SOMEONE has said that the world we have today could not continue to exist without salesmen—which, of course, at once raises the question of whether we ought not to do away with salesmen. But while salesmen may be responsible for some aspects of our current environment, I don't think they should be blamed for all of it. After all, buyers have a responsibility too. And it might equally be said that the world of today is responsible for the salesmen of today. Certainly the salesmen of yesterday were as much different from their modern counterparts as the Model T Ford from the ornate, fish-tailed palace-on-wheels we now enjoy.

Tobin

The salesman of yesterday was not called a consumption engineer, a purchasing counsellor or a distribution advisor. When he wasn't being called a salesman or something unprintable, he was called a drummer.

A drummer was a fellow who blew into town with a brown suitcase, a glad hand and a big smile. (No, I haven't switched to election campaigners, I'm still talking about salesmen.) He wore a loud suit and probably a derby hat, a tricky tie and shined, pointed shoes.

Pal Joey

He knew the latest jokes from the big city and usually carried an assortment of tricks and puzzles, or picture postcards of feminine pulchritude which he showed only to favored customers—that is, any customer he could buttonhole. Usually he was well liked. He had to be or he ceased to be a drummer and had to take up some other trade. And he was always the envy of the boys who stood outside the corner store of the small town.

After he had left for the next stop, they would bring out his jokes for dissection and explanation, and slap their thighs and each other's shoulders as they milked the stories of their final drop of enjoyment. That drummer fellow—he sure was a card!

Over and Over

It has been said of the old-time drummer that his living accommodations were first-class in second-class communities and second-class in first-class cities. That perhaps summed up fairly well his position in the social scale.

It must have taken a happy-go-lucky personality to endure what was in reality a very harrowing life. It was a life of continual travel but without the stimulation of new sights, for everything had been seen before times without number.

It was a life of usually grubby hotel rooms, meals as you found them, and hotel lobbies ad infinitum with identical leather chairs, potted palms and brass spittoons.

Only an unquenchable optimist could stand such a life for long. Only a cast-iron stomach could survive the food. Only a fundamentally happy man could endure being the person he soon became.

Such a character was a far cry from the sales scientist of today. No more the dusty trains and dreary lodgings, no more the smart-alec clowning and the interminable wanderings in the wastelands.

The drummer of today is a drummer no longer. He remains in one place, lives off the fat of the land and consorts almost exclusively with eggheads, college professors, analytical experts and big brass of all kinds.

Instead of knowing every small store keeper for a thousand miles around by his first name, he now deals only in statistical tables and the mathematics of clinical surveys. Instead of seedy postcards he lures prospects with visions of glory. And instead of gambling with his personality and charm to obtain orders, he plays only the sure things as indicated by his charts and electronic brains.

Higher Plane

He does not need to know the latest anecdote of the salesman and the farmer's daughter; his fund of information need not include who's gone broke in the next county or who's starting up a new store in the next whistle-stop.

Instead his mind is a storehouse of information on motivation research; his casual conversation is of depth psychology; he is an authority on the relationship between compulsive buying and subliminal suggestion. In short, the drummer has arrived.

No tradesman now, he enjoys a profession; he may even be a professor. His victim—I mean customer—is not "sold," he is brainwashed.

The consumer, for whom all this glorious system has been devised, is subjected to sales ideas inserted in his entertainment, sales needs linked with his sex urge, sales promotions deftly playing on his fears and anxieties, sales lures aimed at his ambitions and dreams—sales influence perhaps imbibed in the form of chemicals with his soup or absorbed into his body through his clothes, who knows?

It is salesmen, instead of the meek, who have inherited the earth. And God help us all.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

The thinking at those Brains Trust lunches is very demoralizing for a non-practising thinker like myself. All the time Bronowski and Huxley and Bertrand Russell and Lady Violet Bonham Carter were thinking brilliantly about religion, biology, sex, politics, dynamics, literature, early Phoenician ceramics and the rest, the only thing I could think about was how I wanted my steak done.

When the Party's Over

It is hard luck to be a Tory! Ever since 1896 they have always come in just as the party is over.

After a prosperous and growing time for Canada up to 1911, they came in with "no truck, nor trade with the Yankee." By 1914 they had very little truck or trade with anyone, but the war came. Then after three years they had to get the Liberals to help them.

From the early '20s to 1929 things went well, then Mr. Bennett came along to "blast the way of trade." Everyone knows the end of that.

Since 1935 we have had the most prosperous times ever.

No one expects the next five years to be as prosperous as the last and it looks as if the Tories will have the job again.

This time they are going to "divert the way to trade."

New College Buildings

Much is said of acquiring new land for Victoria University College expansion but no one seems to have anything to say about making more adequate use of the existing property.

On the south side of the present buildings is a vast lawn which must represent a considerable upkeep to this starving enterprise. This lawn makes the buildings too remote from the road so that at present most people saffly forth from the more convenient back door in traditional farm-house style. However, this same lawn is fully adequate for the erection of a building quite large enough for the expansion program.

Let us hope that the building committee does not create a non-functional monstrosity at fantastic expense comparable to the Victoria Carnegie Library, the Provincial Museum or the Parliament Buildings, but rather build a two-story building over a high basement similar in architecture to the new library or the neighboring Lanadowne Junior High School.

It is convenient but not essential that the Gordon Head residences be very close to the college. Let us save every penny we can in this matter, since it is quite apparent that to most of the population education is not considered to be worth what it costs.

Many years ago, even in primary schools, we were taught the facts of evolution, and I am quite sure that even in this era of educational defects, no teacher would dare declare that the teaching of evolution would be a fallacy.

Opening my Encyclopedia Americana (1950) volume 10 where all of nine full pages are devoted to the subject of "Evolution," please permit me to reproduce for student's benefit just one separate paragraph, exactly word for word, as sanctioned by the great body of scholars that constitute the editors of that reliable work.

Here it is — "Today there is not one biologist of standing who does not accept the theory, or better, fact, of evolution. And the great majority of all people who think about the matter at all also accept this once ultra-heretical and scoffed-at doctrine."

Strike While the Weather Is Hot

The weather man in B.C. is evidently a capitalist stooge. The electrical brotherhood has declared war against wage-slavery. In response to the call of union leaders, unselfish labor business managers, the organized workers have walked out on the B.C. Electric.

They were refused a measly increase of no more than $1.43 cents an hour—barely sufficient to keep up monthly payments on a Cadillac. They have passed up new car prospects, rather than accept the capitalist offer of 19 per cent wage increase, when they were advised to ask increases up to 40 per cent.

In spite of this sacrifice by the class-conscious comrades of the electrical brotherhood, the weather man has conspired against them. In a strike of electrical workers, totally to tie up the electric service in this community, something like below zero-weather is needed to make it really felt by the consumer.

The B.C. Electric's service has to be cut off completely, so that the selfish class living in comfortable homes can be made to squirm.

The labor leaders of the electrical brotherhood could have welcomed more loyal support by the weather man, with some of Newfoundland's recent weather. There, sleet, snow and ice blitzed the power lines, crashed the poles. The capitalist class in St. John's and the Avalon Peninsula of Newfoundland were left to shiver around candles, oil lamps and stoves.

So were the servile wage-slaves, with no union leaders to show how stopping the power service can bring benefits to striking workers.

There is one complication, however, when the weather man is on the side of the strike leaders. In Newfoundland, the authorities called the sleet storm an "Act of God." RCMP and other salvaging forces were mobilized to counteract this act of the tribal deity.

The consumers of B.C. Electric power, with the service totally cut off by strikes, would have no such recourse—in Victoria's mild weather. The strike in full blitzing operation would be an act of the electrical brotherhood. No RCMP or volunteer salvaging aid would be sanctioned.

Against nuclear bombing or other such shut down of the power service, there is an organization called Civil Defence. There could be an organization of consumer defence in Victoria district to serve where needed, when total stoppage of the electrical service is threatened... but the people as consumers are hard to move, excepting when it is to counteract an "Act of God."

FROM WASHINGTON By STEWART ALSOP

A Shadow President?

AT HIS press conference last week, President Eisenhower looked and talked better than he has for a very long time. He seemed ruddily vigorous, and his manner was both alert and relaxed. Even so, there were more questions about the problem of the Presidential succession than about any other topic.

In view of the President's medical history, it is no doubt natural that this should be so. As the President said, "There are a lot of people who are not better lawyers than I am... making a lot of commitments on this thing." But it does not require a degree in constitutional law to understand why House Speaker Sam Rayburn and a few others are so adamantly opposed to creating what Rayburn calls a new "Office of Acting President."

All it requires is an effort of imagination and a sense of the political realities. Suppose that the President suffered another "episode." Suppose that he were partially disabled, but that his doctors held out some hope that before the end of his term, he might again assume office. Under the President's agreement with Vice-President Nixon, the Vice-President would then become "Acting President," while the President would presumably retire to Gettysburg to recuperate.

But what kind of President is an "Acting President?" In terms of the political realities, an acting President is not really President at all, so long as it is hoped or expected that the President himself will resume office. For in a practical, if not in a legal sense, an acting President would lack the untrammelled power to hire and fire on which his authority over the executive branch is based.

Take three specific examples. The most obvious is the case of Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson.

It is a good bet that, if Nixon became President to his own right, one of his first acts would be to replace Benson. For Nixon has long lent a sympathetic ear to the wails of mid-west Republicans who consider Benson a political disaster.

Yet how could an acting President, a mere seat-warmer awaiting the President's return, fire the man whom the President has defended more fiercely and stubbornly than any of his other subordinates?

Another obvious example is that of Presidential aide Sherman Adams. More than Nixon himself, Adams has been the real acting President during the President's illnesses. Nixon and Adams are cordial but they are not personally close. Almost the first thought of any President is to have his own man, a man responsive to him and him alone, as his chief administrative assistant.

Yet how could a mere acting President, while the real President still lived and hoped to return, fire the man closest to the President and most trusted by him?

Finally, take a less obvious example, that of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

Again, the relationship between Nixon and Dulles is cordial enough. But every President in history, and for very good reason, has always wanted his own man in the crucial foreign policy post.

Yet how could a temporary President replace a man whom the President has described as one of the greatest Secretaries of State in American history?

Clear Point

The list could be lengthened almost indefinitely. But the point is surely clear. So long as there remained a chance that the President would again assume office, the acting President would be a mere shadow of a President. The members of the administration would be frozen in position, and so would the policies they represented.

For a time, no doubt—a month or two—this system could be made to work somehow, especially if it were considered certain that the President would return. But in such times as these, it could not possibly be made to work indefinitely. For these times urgently require a real, and not a shadow, President.

What is the solution? The answer is that there is no neat and comfortable solution which can be confidently written down in advance. As the President himself said, "It is almost impossible to write a formula that is going to work."

Medical Judgment

The problem really comes down to a matter of the President's judgment and that of his medical advisers.

If they felt reasonably certain that the President could again assume his office in a brief time, then the agreement between the President and the Vice-President would be an adequate if unsatisfactory answer to the problem.

But if there were real doubt that the President could resume his duties for many months, if at all, then only one course would really be open to the President—to resign, and turn over the office itself, as well as its powers and duties, to the Vice-President.

'Sittin' in the Noonday Sun'

I wander mentally like a cloud that floats on high o'er vales and hills, and if it were't for the drag on my lids, I'd open my eyes to admire the golden daffodils.

In other people, this might be the onset of spring fever. It isn't with me. The condition is year-round, permanent.

When the "song-writers" turned out "Lazy Bones" back in 1933, they provided my theme. I'd been furnishing the living inspiration for it a long, long time.

I'm the guy Ulysses found on the beach when his boys rowed in to Lotus Land. To me life is always in the afternoon, a drowsy afternoon such as we knew in spring term classrooms when sun streamed through the windows and a bee bumbled among the cut flowers in vases on the ledge.

"BENCH-WARMERS"

Because of this, I have a constitutional interest in the "bench-warmers" who find themselves benchless in our school system under terms of the new act.

When that engaging lady told the newspapers the other day that there are very few lazy bench-warmers in Victoria schools, she wasn't quite correct. There are quite a number of them—maybe as many as 10 per cent.

And there's an explanation, though not necessarily a justification, for some.

As it is told to me, in certain schools there is roughly 5 per cent of the student body classed in the low, I.Q. group. These are people who lack the ability to keep up with the class, the ones who find the work beyond them.

Over a period of years, so the experts say, they've come to the conclusion that they can't handle the lessons given to them. Reaching that realization they've decided it isn't worth trying. In consequence they've developed work habits that are thoroughly unsatisfactory. They're lazy.

In addition to this 5 per cent at the foot of the ladder, there are probably a quarter of the 20 per cent just one rung up who develop the same characteristics and largely for the same reason, although the other three-quarters make up in effort what they lack in capacity.

But it isn't only the pupils with low ability who are lazy. Some of those who could be among the leaders won't exert themselves. As a friend of mine puts it, they have no motivation.

He quotes to me the words of one such youngster—a boy who could be doing well in his grades and who merely hits a "pass average." "I get by," says the kid. "Why should I beat my brains out?"

How, my friend wants to know, do you light the flame there?

DEFECTIVE SPARK

In mechanical terms, some have poor engines that work at low efficiency. Others have good engines but defective spark.

Whatever the equipment, the boy who is lazy at 14 or 15, I'm told, has often developed habits that he doesn't break.

But you can't be sure. Sometimes at 17 or 18 a boy who has placed his mentality in cold storage because he didn't believe in expending the effort to use it, will defrost. He'll get up and go with a speed that offsets the wasted years and make some use of his brains.

That happens, says my friend, when the boy suddenly finds an interest, sets himself a goal and works toward it. Often no one can account for the change.

Maybe the short, sharp jolt a school system can give him by kicking him out will provide the stimulant the lazy boy needs. Perhaps, on the other hand, it will merely relieve him of the chore of going to school.

A lot of people aren't convinced that dismissal is an adequate answer. They think the more constructive approach is the creation of courses, apart from the regular curriculum, which will give the inert kid an interest sufficient to overcome his inertia.

That may not convert the boy who is not very bright into a ball of fire. It could, though, provide a spark. Which, as the man in Priestley's Good Companions proved, might be all that's needed for those with "mooky plogs."

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Varicose Veins

People keep asking me what to do for varicose veins. In those many cases in which they are not causing much trouble, all that is needed is to wear an elastic bandage or any of the new elastic stockings which are not very conspicuous.

If the veins are getting larger, and causing pain or leg ulcers, the best thing to do is to have them removed by an expert in this field. He usually makes a little cut at the lower end of the leg, he slips around the vein that is to be removed a ring which is on the end of a long rod. He then pushes the ring up along the vein, separating it from its little branches and surrounding structures. When he gets up near the groin, he makes another little cut, and through this hole takes out the bad vein. The blood now will go up through veins which are deeper down in the leg and thigh, where they are surrounded by muscle which supports them.

HYPO AND HYPER
People ask what is hypothyroidism and what is hyperthyroidism? In Greek hypo means under and hyper means above. The thyroid gland produces a substance which tends to regulate the speed at which our body chemistry runs. It is like a governor on an engine.

If a woman has a toxic goiter and hyperthyroidism, with too much thyroid secretion in her blood, she is likely to have a tremor of her hands; perspiration may be running out of her armpits; her heart will be running much too fast; she may have an increased appetite, and yet she will lose much weight. I have seen these people lose 50 or 60 pounds in weight in a short time. The woman may have a diarrhea. Usually she will sleep poorly at night. She will feel so warm she will kick off the bed clothes and open the windows. Her brain may be so poisoned that she will become irritable and unreasonable and perhaps a bit psychotic. She will be blinking her eyes too often. When she comes into my office, I may note right away that she is too restless to sit still. She will be fidgeting. Her eyes may be bulging forward; her skin may have a reddish color, and when I reach out and touch her hand, I will note that it is warm; just as if she had a fever of 102 degrees.

Gardening Clubs Aplenty in City

This is straightening-out day. There is one point on which gardeners are not quite clear and a few words on it should help.

I have heard it said on more than one occasion that gardening organizations are non-existent in Victoria because none appear in the telephone directory.

There are at least six or seven operating in this district and nearly every community up Island has its gardening club.

The oldest group is the Victoria Horticultural Society founded in 1922 and in continual operation ever since.

Meetings are held in the council chamber of the City Hall on the first Tuesday of each month and membership includes the monthly publication "Garden Notes." The secretary is Major G. A. Wiggan, 1840 Ferndale Road, 7-3265.

The Gordon Head Garden Club serves the Gordon Head district, but, like all other clubs, is not restricted to residents of that area. Meetings are on the first Monday of the month, in the Community Hall, Tyndall Ave., and the secretary is Mrs. A. R. Bell, 2178 Ferndale Road, 7-2024.

View Royal residents are served by the View Royal Garden Club which meets in the Community Hall, Island Highway on the fourth Wednesday of the month. Secretary is Mr. Eric Gee, 301 Beaumont Road, 9-3074.

In specialty societies we have the Vancouver Island Rock and Alpine Garden Society, the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society, the Victoria Begonia Society, the Victoria Gladiolus Society and several organizations, which maintain a gardening section.

On the Saanich Peninsula there is the gardening club at Sidney, also there is another associated with the PTA group on James Island.

It has been said that Victoria has more organizations per capita than any city in Canada, and the gardening fraternity is well represented.

If there is a gardening group in your community, give your full support. You can help it. It can help you. If there is no such group, and you would like to have one, call your neighbors together and start one.

There are no friends like true gardeners.

MINING AREA SURVEYS URGED BY ASSELSTINE

Geological surveys of B.C. areas where there are known mineral deposits were urged in the Legislature Wednesday night by W. J. Asselstine, Social Credit member for Atlin and a former mines minister in the Liberal government.

"We should do all we can to encourage prospectors to come to this province."

Speaking in support for a grant-in-aid of $145,000 for construction of mining roads, and trails in estimates for the mines department, Mr. Asselstine also called for more mining access roads.

Gas Station Hours to Continue Under Rule of Municipalities

Regulation of service station hours will continue to be under municipal jurisdiction.

This was the verdict of the legislative municipal affairs committee which presented a report to the legislature Thursday after hearing representations.

The government previously introduced draft amendments to the Municipal Act which would have set out province-wide regulations for service station hours.

Service stations which wished to stay open beyond the normal evening closing time would have been compelled to remain open 24 hours under these proposals.

TWO-THIRDS

Under the new amendment, municipal councils, by a two-thirds majority, may pass a by-law setting out their own regulations for service station hours. If no bylaw is passed, stations must close at 6 p.m.

A special provision is included in the amendments, however, to allow municipalities to pass by-laws extending this time to 7 p.m. in the winter months and 9 p.m. in the summer.

Meeting Tonight
On Hotel Strike

Nine employees of the Ritz Hotel decide tonight whether they will call the city's first hotel strike.

Members of the Hotel and Restaurant Employees' Union, they voted Thursday in favor of strike action to back demands for a union shop, 40-hour, five-day work week and wage increases.

The union was to meet tonight at its office in the Labor Hall on Pandora to decide further action following the government-supervised vote.

"But we're still open to negotiations towards a peaceful settlement," said business agent James Bellavance.

The union has rejected a unanimous conciliation board recommendation for wage increases to 93½ cents an hour for housekeepers and 71½ cents for elevator operators and maids on a 40-hour week spread over six days.

The union seeks a $1.10 hourly scale for housekeepers, 85 cents for maids and 75 cents for elevator operators.

In other negotiations, the union has accepted a conciliation board recommendation of a 40-hour, five-day week for employees at the Yates Hotel along with hourly scale of $1.10 for janitors and 85 cents for maids.

A minority recommendation of $1.10 an hour for desk clerks and housekeepers was accepted. Majority recommendation of 85 cents and 95 cents an hour respectively was rejected.

B.C. Telephone
Head Retires

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gordon Farrell, for 30 years president of the British Columbia Telephone Co., retired Thursday and company director Cyrus H. McLean was elected to succeed him.

The changes took place at the directors meeting following the company's annual shareholders' meeting here.

Mr. Farrell was named chairman of the board, succeeding Frank S. Spring, who continues as a director.

Mr. Farrell's father was the first president of B.C. Telephone. He joined the company in 1919 and became president nine years later, when the company had 108,000 telephones. It now has 457,000 telephones.

Mr. McLean also replaced Mr. Farrell as president of North-west Telephone Co., an associate of B.C. Telephone.

House Rejects
Hansard Move

The government Thursday rejected a Hansard for the Provincial Legislature.

Provincial Secretary Wesley Black claimed verbatim reporting of debates "would not be conducive to good government."

Vote against the CCF-sponsored resolution was 32-14.

One Social Credit backbencher — J. Donald Smith of Victoria — voted against the government in favor of a Hansard.

Mr. Black said the government had given serious consideration to the proposal in the last few years, but had decided it would not be in the best interests of the people.

Members would use a Hansard to "propagandize" their own constituencies, he said.

CCF Leader Robert Strachan said the government members were apparently afraid to have their words placed on record.

SCRAPING BOTTOM

"The government is really scraping the bottom of the barrel to find excuses for not supporting the resolution," Mr. Strachan said.

"The people on the government side say lots during the session they would want to forget — things they don't want taken back to their home ridings."

The Opposition leader scored the statement made last week by Cyril Sheldorf (SC, Omineca) that government members can have their say in caucus without taking up the time of the House.

SPEECH IN HOUSE

"What kind of approach is that?" Mr. Strachan asked. "The members shouldn't be speaking behind the closed doors of the caucus, but in the legislature."

Randolph Harding (CCF, Kaslo-Slocan) said the province is losing something from a historical viewpoint alone that it cannot afford to lose by not having a Hansard.

"I have heard many wonderful speeches in this House that I would like to sit down and read again."

Mr. Harding said a Hansard would raise the level of debate in the Legislature.

"We would be much more careful if we knew we were going to be recorded for posterity."

Mr. Smith said he was opposing the government by supporting the resolution "with mixed feelings."

"But I feel it is something the people of Victoria and the province want," he said.

DETERIORATE

John Tisdale (SC, Saanich), said a Hansard "is not going to do much now for the debates", and we should be more concerned with the present than the future.

Herbert Bruch (SC, Esquimalt) said a Hansard would "deteriorate" debates in the House. In every legislature where they are used, debates have to be restricted in length, he said.

Mr. Black said the government was not concerned about the cost of a Hansard.

"What we say here will not be remembered," the minister said. "What will be remembered is what we do here."

"The real Hansard is the statutes."

City Prepared
To Expropriate

City council is prepared to expropriate one of eight homes in the area required for a new fire hall at Yates and Camosun.

The owner, unidentified at the Thursday council meeting, agreed to sell the property for $15,750 — a price city fire wardens' committee described as too high.

"We feel this lady is asking too much and we hope to carry out further negotiations with her," said Ald. Arthur Dowell.

"If we cannot come to a satisfactory arrangement, there will be no alternative to expropriation," he added.

Council amended its earlier property-purchase by-law to allow an expenditure of $74,650 for seven other homes in the area bounded by Yates, Camosun and Johnson.

The by-law will be sent to the provincial department of municipal affairs now for approval. If it is necessary to expropriate the home in question, it will be by separate motion.

MANDATORY

The action would mean the home would be evaluated by a provincial committee and sale would be mandatory.

Council received and filed a 50-name petition from Mrs. A. F. Matthews, 1306 Camosun, which protested the fire hall site.

Similar action was taken with a lawyer's letter which threatened legal action if an apartment house in the vicinity lost trade because of the hall's location.

Ald. G. I. Edgelow blamed Ald. W. H. Mooney for "getting people steamed up" about the land transactions.

"I think somebody on this council, possibly Ald. Mooney, has put a drive on."

Ald. Mooney replied:

A continued growth in use of library facilities was reported.

KIWANIS PLAN HOMES FOR ELDERLY AT DUNCAN

DUNCAN—Kiwans Club here has announced plans for a ranch-style housing project of 18 units for elderly folk to cost from $75,000 to $100,000. It is expected that only about $10,000 of the total will have to be raised locally. If the money can be raised this year, construction will start in 1959. The chosen site is on Trunk Road, three blocks east of the Trans-Canada Highway traffic light.

Famous Stamp Collection To Be Shown

Stamp collectors and visitors to British Columbia will have an opportunity of seeing a world famous collection during Centennial year in Vancouver.

As a Centennial project, the B.C. Philatelic Society has arranged with Gerald Wellburn of Duncan, B.C., to show selected pages of Canada and the provinces from 1851 on. As this collection has only been shown at international shows, collectors in or coming to Vancouver will have an excellent opportunity to view this outstanding display. The showing will be located in the Vancouver Public Library and will run from May 1 to May 31.

On May 30-31, June 1, 1958, the Vancouver Public Library will also be the scene of another exhibition, that of the Northwest Federation of Stamp Clubs, who will hold their 18th annual convention and exhibition here. General chairman of the affair is Mr. B. C. Binks, 465 East 12th Street, North Vancouver, B.C.

Socred Urges Sterling Deal With Britain

Canada should accept sterling to increase its trade with Britain, George Hahn, Social Credit member of parliament for New Westminster, told a political meeting at the Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall Thursday.

He was speaking on behalf of Socred candidates Noel Bell, Esquimalt-Saanich, and Elmer McEwen, Victoria.

Mr. Hahn described the Conservative plan of diverting 15 per cent of U.S. trade to Britain as a "crackpot idea." It was like taking something from one pocket and putting it in another, he said.

Instead, he said, trade should be increased with Britain through acceptance of sterling and not diversion of United States trade.

Gov't Rejects Control Of Phone Firm by PUC

A CCF proposal that the B.C. Telephone Company be placed under control of the Public Utilities Commission was turned down by the government Thursday.

But Attorney-General Bonner indicated the government may consider the suggestion in the future.

A resolution introduced by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said the telephone company now is subject to "limited and ineffective" control by the federal board of transport commissioners.

32-12 VOTE

The resolution said the government should apply to Ottawa to have control of B.C. Telephone Co. transferred to the province.

It was voted down, 32-12. Mr. Strachan said the federal Transport Board is concerned only with the "fiscal needs" of the company, not the service it provides.

"In every district in the province there is ample evidence something must be done about telephone service," the CCF leader said.

The purpose of the PUC is to protect the consumers of the province, "and the people definitely need protection and better service."

When government members stood up to vote against the resolution, Mr. Strachan jibed:

"They're all satisfied with the service of the telephone company."

"You can expropriate it when you become government," Attorney-General Bonner retorted. Earlier, Mr. Bonner said the B.C. Telephone Co. is incorporated under a special federal statute which would have to be amended before control could be reversed.

The attorney-general said the government could not accept the resolution "at this time," but added that "some of the points of the Opposition leader may commend themselves in due course."

He asked Mr. Strachan for specific complaints that could be taken up with the Board of Transport Commissioners.

TOO FAR REMOVED

Gordon Dowding (CCF-Burnaby) said federal jurisdiction is "too far removed from the local scene."

"History shows the company has had every advantage from its preferred position," Mr. Dowding said.

It has not provided service commensurate with the profits it has enjoyed, the CCF member added.

Mr. Dowding said there is a "tight monopoly" in the price of telephone equipment.

"It is a wonderful field day for profiteers with inter-related companies," he said, "and the cost is paid by the subscribers."

"The people of B.C. are paying a heavy tribute for this private monopoly," Mr. Dowding said.

J. Donald Smith (SC-Victoria) said he believes rates charged by B.C. Telephone are "excessive," but said he could not support the resolution without more concrete evidence.

Mr. Smith suggested a legislative committee inquiry into the matter.

The Victoria member was the only government backbencher to speak in the debate.

Penitentiary Terms Given Two Burglars

NANAIMO—Two men were sentenced in police court here Thursday on charges of breaking and entering and passing forged cheques.

Harold Pierce, 23, was sentenced to four years, and was told he could be charged as a habitual offender because of a record dating back to 1951.

Donald Watson, 20, was sentenced to three years. He said he had committed the offences because he was "short of money."

According to evidence the two men broke into the Thompson Lumber Company office Feb. 22 and stole a typewriter, cheque protector, blank cheques, adding machine and a stamp machine.

CHEMAINUS — North Cowichan issued 15 building permits last month for new houses, representing a value of $117,091. Permits for nine house repairs totalled $10,490, and commercial repairs $6,510, making a grand total for the month of $134,091.

Telephone Operator Traps Young Burglar

ALBERNI (CP)—Police said Thursday a 17-year-old youth knocked a telephone from its cradle during a break-in at a hardware store here and an alert telephone operator tipped off police.

The Alberni youth pleaded guilty in juvenile court Thursday to charges of breaking and entering and theft. He was remanded for sentence.

The telephone operator advised RCMP when the store's phone signal repeatedly flashed at her switchboard. With office manager Jack Dunbar, police entered the store and found the youth crouched on a table. A loaded .22-calibre rifle, an air pistol, and ammunition were beside him.

Police said the dial on a safe in the store had been knocked off but not opened. Entry to the building had been gained through a window.

HEAVY-EYED LAWMAKERS ADJOURN AT MIDNIGHT

The B.C. Legislature adjourned at 12.15 today after passing estimated expenditures for the lands and forests department amounting to more than $12,200,000.

It was the second time that the estimates of Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston had been up for discussion. The first time, last Tuesday, the debate ran for more than four hours.

Thursday night they were debated for another four hours before they were approved. Most of the debate centred around the controversial Wenner-Gren scheme to develop 40,000 square miles of north-central British Columbia.

$100 Million Gift To Wenner-CCF

Randolph Harding, the CCF member for Kaslo-Slocan, accused the British Columbia government of making a gift of $100,000,000 a year to the Wenner-Gren interests in a speech in the Legislature Thursday night.

He said one horsepower over a period of one year was worth $25 and the government had given Wenner-Gren permission to build a 4,000,000 horsepower hydro-electric development on the Peace River.

"[This means you are giving Wenner-Gren an outright gift of $100,000,000 a year alone," he said.

"POOR DEAL"

Mr. Harding referred to the government's agreement with the Wenner-Gren interests as "a poor deal."

He said surveys should be made and the mineral and timber resources put up to the highest bidder.

"That's free enterprise," Mr. Harding said. "To turn these resources over to one man is monopoly enterprise."

Hydro power should be developed by the province, he said. The Peace River hydro site now under investigation "is one of the greatest power sources in the province," he declared.

Mr. Harding seized on a statement by Lands and Forests Minister Williston that timber resources in the area do not appear to be of great economic value.

(The minister disclosed that 303 employees of his department were surveying the area last summer.)

"If Wenner-Gren isn't going in for the timber, what is he going in for?" Mr. Harding asked.

He suggested that Wenner-Gren was primarily interested in the mineral resources of the Trench.

W. J. Asselstine, a former Liberal minister of mines and now a Social Credit backbencher for Atlin, said there was no reserve on minerals for Wenner-Gren.

Scurrah Backs Alderman In Planning Statements

Mayor Percy Scurrah Thursday defended statements by Ald. M. H. Mooney which indicated the Capital Region Planning Board could overrule local municipal councils in planning matters.

Ald. Mooney's statements were described by Esquimalt councillor J. E. Carey Wednesday as "all wet."

The mayor quoted section 720 of the new Municipal Act to show that in a planning area such as exists here, minor municipalities could direct the destinies of larger ones.

It states that if two-thirds of the municipalities in a district planning area endorse an overall development plan, all municipalities within that area are obligated to adhere to the scheme.

In this district, Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt, Saanich, View Royal, Central Saanich and Sidney would each have equal vote on such planning. The five smaller municipalities could be at variance with Victoria and Saanich and overrule them.

The mayor added, however, "as the act reads, Ald. Mooney is correct. However, there is one safeguard. We can appeal to the lieutenant-governor-in-council."

"In the opinion of one high official of the government, no government will agree to the CRPB interfering with placing of public buildings in any municipality. It is his opinion, the CRPB will plan on broad lines, not be specific and interfere with any municipality."

Meanwhile, a recommendation has been submitted to the provincial municipal affairs department by Victoria branch, Community Planning Association of Canada, asking that where a district plan has been adopted, no zoning by-laws be permitted which might be at variance to the overall plan."

MEN TO BEAT FOR ZONE TENPIN CROWN

Defending champion Ken Munn (left) will have a record array of pin talent attempting to topple him from his throne when city zone tenpin championships open Saturday. Facing him are two-time champion will be (left to right) Ron Coulter, 1956 champion; Andy Palmer, who won title in 1955, and Wilbur Webb, runner-up to Munn last year. Two top finishers will represent Victoria in B.C. zone finals.

THE SCOREBOARD BY Harry Grayson

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (NEA)—In his own words, Gil McDougald is ready to float around the diamond again, waiting for Casey Stengel to make up his mind who is going to play second and third base and shortstop for the Yankees.

In the last two years McDougald established himself as one of the great shortstops. He is the ball player scouts forever seek and rarely find—a big hitter at shortstop. But the personable San Francisco also is the perfect Stengel ball player. He can play anywhere.

GIL McDOUGALD

The idea now seems to be to give young Tony Kubek, who wants to play shortstop, a shot at the job. McDougald can always go back there and Professor Stengel knows that he can also play second or third base.

McDougald can't see any reason why Kubek, who played five positions to be the American League recruit-of-the-year in 1957, can't play shortstop. Or why Billy Martin can't make the same jump for the Tigers.

"I don't mean that the transition is easy," explained McDougald. "Shortstop is much more difficult to play than second base, which to me is the easiest job in the infield except for first base. The second baseman has more time and a shorter throw. He can fumble the ball and still throw out the batter."

"Shortstop is the centrefield of the infield. The shortstop has to cover more ground than the second baseman. He's got to be real smooth, get rid of the ball in a hurry. If he kicks one, he hasn't an outside chance of throwing the batter out."

"When he goes into the hole or comes in on a slow roller, the shortstop has to flip the ball from his glove. Balls come at him from a different angle than at second base, where the ball usually is slicing to the left. At shortstop, the ball is either hooking a little or straight."

"There is one compensation in playing shortstop. The infielder is much safer there on a double play than he is at second base, where you can be badly hurt when raked up by a base runner."

"The second baseman is in jeopardy every time a slow grounder is hit to the shortstop with less than two out and a man on first base. He's an open target for the base runner trying to break up the double-play while waiting for the shortstop to get the ball to him."

"In the same situation, with the ball hit to the second baseman, the shortstop is looking at the base-runner and can get out of the way of his slide."

"Kubek and Martin are athletes and adjustable guys with baseball instinct, so you won't hear me saying that they can't play shortstop. You'll hear baseball people say a player can't play here or there. That has been the story through the years, I guess. They said I couldn't play second base. Then they said I couldn't play third base. Then it was shortstop I couldn't play."

"But how do you know that a guy can't play shortstop until he tries to? That's probably the reason Stengel looks at players in more than one position. Casey has been around for a long time, you know."

PAIR OF PERFECT GAMES HELP TOPPLE PIN MARK

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A 21-year-old bowling record fell here Wednesday night when the St. Louis Cardinals broke the team series standard of the Math Hermanns, also a St. Louis team.

The Cardinals shot a 3,858 series to snap the old record of 3,797.

Ray Bluth led the Cardinals with an 834 series, tops in the ABC this season. He shot a pair of 267s, then capped the night with a perfect 300. Tom Hennessey also shot a 300 as the Cardinals registered game totals of 1,265, 1,300 and 1,293.

Bowlers Aiming At Ken's Title

Competition will be tough for defending champion Ken Munn when the firing starts in the city zone tenpin bowling championships Saturday.

A record entry of 57 bowlers will take to the alleys for the right to qualify for the B.C. zone playoff and on eventual berth in the American Bowling Congress masters tournament.

Tournament opens at Strathcona Alley on Saturday with shifts at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m. Second six-game block of 24-game series will be held at Gibson's Bowladrome Sunday starting at 4 p.m. Series will conclude the following weekend.

RICH PRIZE LIST

Prize list for the event is biggest in history with separate division this year being the 165-and-under average class, in which no less than 31 bowlers have entered.

Top bowler in the competition will receive the Orange Crush trophy and $50. Second-place bowler will receive the Goodwill Bottlers trophy and $40. Both will represent city in B.C. zone finals at New Westminster.

Top man in the 165-and-under division will receive $30 with $20 for runner-up.

There are seven main prizes in each division plus awards for high single, high three, high sixes, and a long list of consolation and hidden-score prizes.

FORMER WINNERS

In winning the event for the second time last year Munn had a 4,371 total.

Other previous winners entered are Andy Palmer who won in 1955 with 4,510 and Ron Coulter, 1956 winner, with 4,497.

Following B.C. zone finals, provincial winners will play off with Alberta champion for right to enter Canadian finals scheduled here May 16, 17, 18, with winner of Canadian to be seeded into ABC masters tournament at Syracuse, New York, late in May.

Injuries to Key Players Worry Canyons, Bruins

Boston Loses Toppazzini; Plante Hurt

By The Canadian Press
Injuries are hitting Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens where the teams can ill afford them.

Boston lost forward Jerry Toppazzini for the season and Montreal will be without goalie Jacques Plante for a week or 10 days as a result of injuries in Thursday night's game.

Boston defeated Montreal 7-3 to move into undisputed possession of third place two points ahead of Detroit Red Wings and six points behind New York Rangers. Montreal has clinched first place.

Boston, with several disappointments at forward this season, is losing its third-highest goal scorer and top penalty killer in Toppazzini.

MAKES THE BIG STOPS

Montreal coach Hector (Toe) Blake calls Plante the most underrated goalie in the league and credits him with making the big saves that have given Canadiens their 20-point lead.

Ironically, Boston has two top-flight goalies available now that Don Simmons is almost ready for action and veteran Harry Lumley, who came in after Simmons was injured, is showing his old-time style.

Montreal has the forward strength. The team took lengthy injuries to Maurice Richard and Bernie Geoffrion in stride and now, with Geoffrion out for the regular season and Marcel Bonin injured, has capable replacements.

EYE HEMORRHAGE

Toppazzini, 26-year-old native of Copper Cliff, Ont., suffered a hemorrhage in the eye when struck by a stick in a scramble behind the Montreal goal. Last year he missed several games when he suffered facial lacerations and returned to action a year ago Thursday night.

He has come into his own this year after going from Boston to Chicago Black Hawks to Detroit and back to Boston and has 24 goals and 24 assists.

Plante, 29, suffered a concussion and possible spinal injury when Montreal defenceman Doug Harvey hurled Boston's Vic Stasiuk into him. Plante won the Vezina Trophy the last two years as goalie with the team least scored on and is leading this year's competition.

USE BRUINS' GOALIE

The score was 1-0 for Boston when Plante was injured and replaced by Bruins' spare goalie, Johnny Aiken. Boston scored four goals in the next seven minutes to sew up the game.

Bronco Horvath led the way with two goals, giving him 28, and an assist. His linemates also starred with Stasiuk getting three assists and Johnny Bucyk his 20th goal.

Other Boston scorers were Johnny Peirson, Fleming Mackell, and Don McKenney, his 25th. Phil Goyette scored twice for Montreal and Jean Beliveau, back in stride as playoffs draw closer, scored his 23rd.

Plante stopped 13 shots and Aiken 12. Lumley handled 24.

LOS ANGELES (UP)—Herman Danek, 128, Los Angeles, stopped Enrique Aceves, 127, Los Angeles, 6.
BOSTON, Mass. (UP)—Dick Hall, 180½, Boston, knocked out Gene Hamilton, 158½, New York, 1.

JACQUES GOES DOWN, AND OUT

Top netminder in National Hockey League for past two seasons, Montreal's Jacques Plante, drops to ice after being injured in mishap at Boston Thursday night. Doug Harvey of Canadiens, behind Plante, pushed Boston's Vic Stasiuk, on ice behind net, against goaltender. Boston's Flem Mackell (right) and Tom Johnson, Montreal, are other players shown. Plante suffered concussion and possible spinal injury. (AP Wirephoto.)

Totems Unable to Find Way Past Ghosts' Zone Defence

Victoria High School Totems ran into the towering "Grey Ghosts" of Vancouver's Lord Byng High School at the British Columbia inter-high basketball championships Thursday night, in Vancouver, and suffered a 39-33 setback and elimination.

The "Ghosts", the tallest team ever to compete in the annual tourney, with an average height of six feet, three inches, threw up a solid zone defence that Totems only managed to crack in the third quarter.

Byng led 21-19 at halftime and built up a 32-23 third-quarter edge before Victoria came back to outscore them 10-7 in the final frame.

Darrell Lorimer set the pace for the Totems with a 13-point attack. But it wasn't enough. The win makes the semifinals an all-Mainland affair as Courtenay and Cumberland, the two other Island entries, were sidelined in Wednesday's action.

Lord Byng will play defending champions Vancouver College and Lester Pearson meets Prince of Wales in the semifinals tonight with the finals slated for Saturday evening.

In other second-round games, Vancouver College beat Vernon 66-30, Prince of Wales defeated Mission 45-29, North Surrey dropped West Vancouver 47-27, Cumberland defeated Nelson

Yankees Need Willows But Not Weeping Kind

By The Associated Press

Aside to the Milwaukee fan who sent a weeping willow tree to New York Yankee manager Casey Stengel: It made of Casey mad. But that's not the only reason Stengel is angry. His Yankees need some willows with base hits in them.

The American League champs took another one on the chin Thursday, dropping a 1-0 verdict to the Boston Red Sox for their fifth loss and third whitewashing in six exhibition starts.

Immediately after the game, Stengel alerted regulars Hank Bauer, Bill Skowron and Gil McDougald. "Be ready to work by the weekend," he told the tender-armed trio. "We gotta win a ball game pretty soon."

And in commenting on the bill for $45 he received from a tree nursery in Wisconsin for "one weeping willow delivered at Glendale, Calif." Stengel's home, Casey said, "the guy who pulled the joke is going to find it expensive, because the willow goes right back into the New York club wants to pay for it."

The Yankees managed only six hits off the combined efforts of Frank Sullivan, George Susce and Al Schroll. Billy Consolo got the winning hit for the unbeaten Red Sox. He drove a long single to left center following Sammy White's double in the third inning.

Milwaukee raked Johnny Podres for six runs in the first two innings as the Braves defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-2.

CLOBBER CUBS

San Francisco Giants clobbered Chicago Cubs 13-2 behind the slugging of Daryl Spencer, who had two home runs and a pair of singles.

In other games, Roy McMillan hit a three-run homer and led Cincinnati to a 7-3 triumph over Pittsburgh; rookie Bob Shaw pitched six sparkling innings as Detroit beat Kansas City 8-6; Minnie Minoso's third-inning double drove in the only runs as Cleveland blanked Baltimore 2-0; Washington clubbed Jack Sanford for eight runs in whipping Philadelphia 9-1 and Gene Green's single in the 14th enabled St. Louis to nip Chicago White Sox 3-2.

In other news, world series star Lew Burdette ended his 12-day holdout and signed with the Milwaukee Braves for a $2,500 raise—shortstop Don Buddin of the Boston Red Sox was discharged from the army as a hardship case and will report to the team by the weekend... and Jim Gallagher, former general manager of the Cubs joined the Phillies' farm system. He will help farm director Eugene Margin.

Tillicums Tackle Kickers in Replay

There won't be any league tussles for Victoria and District Football League teams this weekend.

In their place there will be a replay of last week's Province Cup draw between Tillicums and Victoria Kickers, Saturday, and a pair of exhibition matches Sunday.

Tillicums and Kickers played to a 3-3 draw in their fight to find an opponent for Gorge Hotel, already in the zone final in the Province Cup series.

They'll be at it again, on the Royal Athletic Park pitch, Saturday, at 2 p.m.

The major exhibition of the Sunday slate will be played at Heywood Park when Gogi Stewart's Nanaimo entry in the Pacific Coast Summer Soccer League takes on Brodies Bakery.

Although Stewart expects to acquire additional talent, many of the current players will be with Nanaimo through the sunshine months.

Due to play Sunday are goalie Jack Tierney; fullbacks Ken White and D. Sayward; halfbacks Bud Johnson, Neil Hatfield and G. Blackburn, and forwards J. White, G. Johnston, Stan Bob, Jack Scott and H. Hendry.

Spares will be W. Sampson and D. Clark.

The other exhibition will be played at Central Park, when Canadian Scottish will take on Mariners, of Division I, in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association.

All games will be played at 2 p.m.

Replays Mark Action In Minor Soccer Loop

After 50 minutes of overtime to a draw last week, Eagles and Texacos of Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association will try again to settle the Division II playoff when they meet Sunday at Windsor Park.

Playing for the Lower Island championship, the teams will square off at 2 p.m.

A second replay is scheduled Saturday, when Optimists and Evening Optimists clash at Bullen Park in the Division VII Lower Island final.

Last week the teams played to a 1-1 tie, with Gary Ford and Howard Anderson notching the only markers.

MAPLE LEAFS TURN DOWN OFFER TO PURCHASE CLUB

TORONTO (CP)—Harold E. Ballard, one of the committee of seven men which operates Toronto Maple Leafs, said Thursday the National Hockey League club has not been sold.

An offer to buy the club and Maple Leaf Gardens, where the team plays its home games, was made by John D. Fienberg, owner of the Regency Tower Hotel and head of a large home-building organization.

Fienberg was reported to have offered to buy the club and the Gardens for $4,350,000.

Ballard, who described himself as "a substantial shareholder," said the club has not been sold.

In Florida, Conn-Smythe, president of Maple Leaf Gardens, said that as majority shareholder he has no intention of selling out. He added that the offer was a "reasonable" one.

B.C. Wins Curling Title

CALGARY (CP)—Mrs. Lois Haddon's Vancouver rink gave British Columbia its third straight western Canada women's curling championship Thursday by edging a fighting Alberta crew 9-8 in a sudden death extra game.

The B.C. foursome was extended to the final end before defeating Mrs. Ethel Lees of Red Deer, Alta. The tying rock was biting the side of the house in the 12th end but Mrs. Haddon managed to take it out with a heavy shot.

The extra round was needed when both rinks finished the regular four-team double-round robin tournament with four victories and two losses each. Manitoba and Saskatchewan were both eliminated when they suffered defeats in the final round of regular play earlier Thursday.

The Red Deer team fought an uphill battle after taking a 1-0 lead in the first end of the deciding match. Mrs. Haddon scored a whopping five on the second and held a 7-2 lead at the sixth.

Mrs. Lees rallied for three on the seventh before B.C. counted one each on the next two ends. Then the Alberta quartet exploded for two on the 10th and one on the 11th before bowing out with a tremendous attempt at a tie.

On the Vancouver rink with Mrs. Haddon were Mrs. Betty Townsley, Mrs. Isabella Campbell and Mrs. Ruth Ward.

Earlier in the tournament, Mrs. Lees downed B.C. 7-4 in the first round but took a 12-4 drubbing from Mrs. Haddon in the fourth.

In the sixth round, resulting in victories which forced play into the extra round, B.C. defeated Saskatchewan 8-5 and Alberta came from behind to dump Manitoba, 10-8.

How Does a Cactus Grow in the Desert?

The cactus dares to live where there is no hope of water for months at a time. It has learned to cope with life in the dry, sunny desert. There the showers are few and far between. When they come, they often pelt down with violence, washing the sand and light soil down into gullies and hollows. Very little life-giving water sinks into the ground to feed the roots of the desert plants. Most plants need moisture in the soil and a little rain every few days. The cactus plant has learned to do without. In fact, a thousand or more vastly different cactus plants have learned to survive in the dry desert. There they thrive and add beauty to the arid wasteland.

Their problem is to store as much precious water as possible. Their roots do not go deep into the dry soil. The root system of even a tall cactus spreads out wide, just beneath the surface. That way every drop of water is soaked up before it runs away. Another problem is to prevent the drying air from evaporating moisture from the plant surfaces. On a summer's day gallons of water will evaporate from the leaves of, say, an oak tree. Cactus plants do not have the luxury of delicate leaves. What seem to be cactus leaves are really swollen stems. They bulge with stored water and are covered with thick skin to prevent evaporation. Each cactus is a water reservoir. In the desert, water is scarce. Every little bird and animal would steal it from the cactus if he could. So the cactus has to defend itself from robbery. The green, fleshy parts of the plant are smothered with prickles like pins and needles. Protected against robbery, sun and drought, the sturdy cactus has the desert almost to itself. The world's most handsome cactus plants grow in the south-western deserts of Arizona and New Mexico. They are grey-green, adorned with a smattering of bright fruit. In the spring they burst into a riot of color. Your gift encyclopedia has a colored page of beautiful cactus blooms.

Saguaros Stand 50 Feet Tall

The giant saguaros stand like tall sentinels along the valleys and over the hills of the desert. They stand like huge candlesticks, sometimes 50 feet high, pointing their grooved trunks and branches at the sky. The saguaro bears a posy of blossoms like white dinner plates with golden centres. Most common of the cactus plants is the prickly pear, a short, stubby fellow with stems like small, ping pong paddles. Its huge, delicate blooms range from pale yellow to vibrant orange. The flowers fade and are replaced with juicy purple fruit. Another favorite is the ocotilla, a graceful bunch of tall, slender stems. The ocotilla adds flame red-tasseled blossoms to the desert garden. The barrel cactus looks just like a fat green barrel. For a short time it wears a wreath of yellow blossoms on its head. The hedgehog cactus has more prickles than most. It is a dumpy plant with pink or deep red blossoms. All these and many more outwit the arid desert and, for a short spell, burst forth in gorgeously colored flowers.

Glasgow Darkened

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Frightened people phoned churches when a dense cloud over Glasgow plunged the city into complete darkness for almost half an hour late Thursday. Telephone lines to the meteorological office, newspaper offices and churches were jammed before the cloud, an unusually dense one, dispersed.

Sacred Candidate

VANCOUVER (CP)—Michael McCann, 50-year-old railway yard switchman, has been nominated as Social Credit candidate for Vancouver East constituency on the March 31 federal election.

Aldermen Reject Roundabout Plan

An indefinite delay in reconstruction of the Hillside-Douglas-Gorge-Government roundabout was approved Thursday by city council.

Only Ald. Hugh Ramsay and Ald. M. H. Mooney favored immediate action.

The council decision nullifies a resolution passed last year for implementation of a one-way street plan. It was to have been started when it was known what effect the new Point Ellice Bridge would have on traffic using the intersection.

City engineer J. C. Garnett filed a report showing the bridge had little or no effect on the traffic. He estimated traffic using the circle is increasing 7 per cent each year.

NO PROBLEM

But Ald. Edgelow stated: "I can honestly say there is not a problem" at the roundabout.

Ald. Mooney reminded council 90 per cent of businesses in the area had petitioned for the project.

Main opposition has been from a group of businessmen in the Hudson's Bay Company area.

Municipal spending for civil defence was rapped by Ald. D. J. Proudfoot.

Speaking to a motion that council provide an instructor for police and fire auxiliaries when trainees are available, he said:

"I've been against CD from the start for the way it is organized and administered. It is the duty of the federal government to take all the responsibility and expense.

"I don't see why the municipalities should be burdened." Council passed the vote after explaining only 12 per cent of the overall CD costs are met by municipalities.

Council overruled Town Planning Commission twice, Thursday.

It permitted establishment of a service station at Hillside and Shakespear and at Duchess and Fort, despite TPC disapproval.

A majority of residents in the Duchess-Fort area had petitioned against the station.

3,000 Businesses Outside Chamber

There are 3,000 business establishments in Victoria not members of the Chamber of Commerce.

In an endeavor to increase the present 720 members, the chamber is putting on a membership drive April 13-19 in conjunction with "Chamber of Commerce Week" across Canada.

Prospective membership lists have been prepared, and the non-members will be contacted.

Premier Bennett is supporting the drive.

Aim of the drive is to create a more widespread and informed public knowledge of chamber value and strengthen the organization by increased membership.

Wild Life of Africa Described to Rotary

The lighter side of some of Africa's wildlife was described to Rotary Club members Thursday noon at the Empress Hotel.

Brian Roberts, a native of South Africa, who came to Canada in 1956, told of the abundance of game in the Kruger National Park, Transvaal.

Mr. Roberts, who was born in Johannesburg and has lived most of his life in South Africa, said: "I would like to talk about the wild animals of Africa and by that I mean the indigenous fauna and not the present-day politicians of South Africa."

"Contrary to the beliefs of Hollywood producers," he said, "most of Africa's wildlife lives in the open plain country or 'savannah'."

Crocodiles are the greatest aquatic menace in Africa, he said, and in Lake Victoria, the second largest fresh water lake in the world there are an estimated 2,000,000 of them.

Sean Hogan and David Young moved up to the troop as Scouts. Joining as new chums were Corbett Jones, Benny Kozyn, Clark Sturton, Gerry Loiselle, Mossis Goyer and Raymond Poilievre.

A preliminary training course for Scouts will be held March 28-30 in Duncan and billets will be required for a number of visiting trainees. Leaders who have not yet taken the course are required to attend in order to qualify for registration.

During the sessions D. Flawith, newly appointed provincial field commissioner, who is replacing Jim Blain, will be in attendance.

Sidney Group—Thirteen

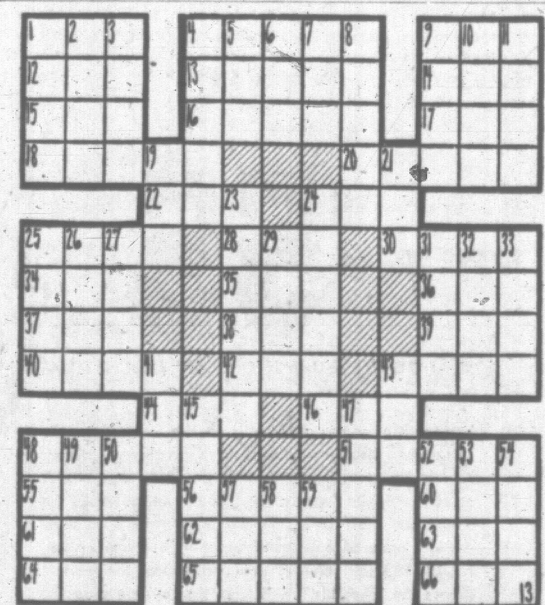

Scouts were enrolled recently by G. M. Owen, North Saanich civil defence commissioner, in an eight weeks' first aid course. Ken Soles will act as instructor for the St. John Ambulance Association.

M. F. Connor and Hugh Dale, of Victoria district Scout council, addressed representatives of Saanich Peninsula group committees at Sidney Scout Hall, on Monday last.

They dealt with a decentralization plan for the Victoria district under which the district would be sub-divided into seven areas.

The North Saanich area will include Sidney, Deep Cove, James Island, Brentwood, Prospect Lake and Cordova Bay. It is hoped to put the plan into effect by September.

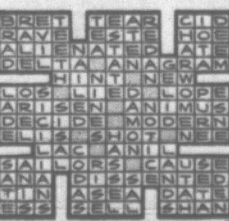

Michael Litwin and Paul Crossley were awarded their second class badges.

Gifts Aren't Deductible

As a special service to Times readers, Gordon Holmes, Victoria chartered accountant, has agreed to provide a series of articles dealing with income tax problems to help eliminate the trouble sometimes experienced in filing proper returns.

By GORDON HOLMES

Member, Institute of Chartered Accountants Thursday we discussed the "standard deduction" for charitable donations, medical expenses, and union, professional and similar dues.

The "standard deduction" is $100, and no receipts are required to substantiate your claim.

However, if you have receipts for donations, medical, union or professional dues in excess of $100, you can claim more than the $100 exemption.

UP TO 10 PER CENT

All donations made in 1957 to Canadian charitable organizations are allowable deductions to the extent of 10 per cent of your net income. If you've given more than the 10 per cent, it may be carried over to your 1958 tax return.

Donations made in the United States can be deducted up to 10 per cent of your U.S. income. Charitable organizations are your church, Community Chest, Red Cross, Salvation Army, the UBC development fund and the like.

Gifts to individuals are not regarded as charitable donations and are not allowed as a deduction from your taxable income.

I've talked about the help the tax department will give you at the Belmont Building, and now I'd like to mention a request the have for you. They ask: "Please attach the receipts for donations, medical expenses, union, professional and like dues, to your 1957 tax return as this will speed your refund from Ottawa to you, and help them in their assessing job."

Make sure you attach your union dues receipts to your 1957 tax return, and claim only the total of your monthly 1957 deductions. Do not claim initiation fees if you are a new union member.

For professional and like dues, the amount paid for entry to your professional body is not allowed. But you can claim the annual cost. Send in the receipts with your 1957 return.

PRINCESS MARGARET IN B.C. JULY 12-26

Princess Margaret will visit the province July 12-26, the office of the provincial secretary announced Thursday.

But there are still no firm dates as to when the princess will visit Victoria.

R. A. Pennington, deputy provincial secretary, said it might be three weeks before the Victoria dates are known. The proposed program for the visit has been submitted, but is subject to approval by the princess herself.

The royal party will stay at the Empress Hotel.

Big Time for All At Shriners' Ball

Anyone can join in the fun at the Shriners 11th annual ball in the Empress Hotel March 21. Sponsored by Victoria Gizeh Temple Shrine Band, tickets can be purchased by the general public from any Shriner or the main floor ticket booth at Hudson's Bay Company.

For $5 a person, the entertainment will include dancing to Charlie Hunt's orchestra from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., with a "sit-down" dinner thrown in at 11 p.m.

FANFARE

The 35-man Shriner brass band, dressed in colorful jewelled red fezes and green and gold silk costumes, will provide the introductory fanfare for the arrival of Gizeh Temple's illustrious Potentate Harper Baikie of Courtenay.

The ball is a feature activity of the 360-member Victoria Shrine Club, which contributes $3,000 annually to the Queen Alexandra Solarium. The Shrine band performs concerts at the Solarium, the Old Men's Home, the Veterans' Hospital and the Victoria Protestant Orphanage every year.

Grocer Fined $15 in Saanich For Violating Closing By-Law

Saanich grocer Henry Eng, 3475 Quadra, was found guilty and fined $15 for violation of a store closing by-law at completion of a lengthy hearing in Saanich court Thursday.

He faces three other similar charges, the first of which was remanded for one week.

He was charged with failing to close his store and remain closed after noon Feb. 3. Eng admitted closing for a few minutes then reopening for normal business.

NO STIPULATION
Eng argued the by-law did not stipulate a store must remain closed for the remainder of the day, but the court held there is no compulsion for the by-law to make this distinction.

"Any cases after this will not be limited to $15 fines," Magistrate H. C. Hall said.

Remaining charges against Eng concern 6 p.m. closing.

Walter McGovern, Carey Rd. Food Market, 3824 Carey, pleaded guilty to a violation of closing times and was fined $15. William I. Shillington, Shillington's Store, 3455 Quadra, was remanded for one week on a similar charge.

Sell Out Likely For Last Nights Of School Shows

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

Keen interest has been maintained by parents and students throughout this week of Victoria Schools' Drama Festival. Thursday night's session at Mount View High School was, like all previous sessions, well attended, while tonight's at Oak Bay Junior High and Saturday's honor performance at Victoria High, promise to be sell-outs.

Thursday's program proved more varied than those that had gone before, and again consisted of considerably advanced selections.

"The End of the Beginning," by Sean O'Casey, presented by Mt. View High School, was the first play.

The evening's first play was described by adjudicator Sydney Risk as "a minor classic in the one-act field."

"It was basically farce but really a character comedy, he remarked. He found the tempo good and commended the production for building to a climax. Also he noted the fact that this cast had used the whole stage.

"Altogether a very enjoyable performance," said Mr. Risk.

He praised all three actors for achieving the right characterizations; particularly Doreen Holt, who gave an excellent interpretation and moved well, and Larry Brookes who really "got into the skin of the part" and "showed the creaks of middle age."

"Ophelia," by T. R. Morris, presented by Mt. View High School, was the second play. The cast included: Nurse—Audwin Wright; Page—Barbara Whipple; Mother of Ophelia—Heather McWilliam; Queen—Ethel Vann; Viola—Peggy Kour; Eliza—Sheila Derman; Ophelia—Carol Martin.

Director: Mrs. I. Lee. Stage Managers: Mr. Anderson, Mr. Ross, Stanley.

While, Mr. Risk observed, it was not the adjudicator's job to comment on the play but only to analyze the performance, he felt that in this case the play had over-powered the actors.

It was too wordy and redundant and the emotions involved were far beyond the possible experience of the actors.

He felt that the cast was an intelligent one and that in a modern or more natural play that they could have done a very good job. Life and vitality had been needed and a more varied tempo.

Andwin Wright as the nurse had given a good suggestion of the old family retainer, he commented. Ethel Vann had come close to realization of her role at times. Carol Martin had tried hard, but her "Ophelia" was too modern and sane, Mr. Risk thought.

This piece was straight farce and the actors had kept it moving.

New Law Eases Car Insurance Card Acceptance

Legislation authorizing the provincial government to enter reciprocal agreements with other provinces and U.S. states in the use of automobile insurance cards was given first reading in the Legislature Thursday night.

When the agreements are in effect, financial responsibility cards will be accepted when a motorist is involved in an accident outside the province.

First agreement is expected to be made with the Province of Alberta.

The measure was contained in a number of amendments to the Provincial Motor-Vehicles Act. Most were of a minor nature.

ADJUDICATOR TONIGHT NAMES 3 TOP PLAYS

Tonight's performance in the Schools' Drama Festival to be held at Oak Bay Junior High School, will be followed by the eagerly-awaited announcement of the adjudicator's choice of three outstanding plays for the Saturday honor performance.

Three plays to be seen and considered by Sydney Risk tonight are Eugene O'Neill's "The Iceman Cometh," presented by Belmont Junior-Senior High; "One Morning Very Early," by Philip Johnson and Howard Agg, performed by Victoria High School, and "Op-O-Me-Thumb," by Frederick Fenn and Richard Pryce, the entry of Oak Bay Senior High.

Former Newsman Dies

VANCOUVER (CP)—Arthur James Smith, 69, former financial editor of the Vancouver Sun and well known in newspaper, financial and legal circles in this province, died Wednesday in hospital here of a heart ailment.

Civic Pay Disputes Go To Conciliation Board

Conciliation boards will rule on wage requests by city firemen and public health nurses.

Outside workers will be offered a 5.2 per cent increase and city manager C.C. Wyatt is "cautiously optimistic" the offer will be accepted by the union.

Latest moves in annual wage negotiations between city council and the unions were disclosed at a council meeting Thursday.

5.2% INCREASE

Council has already reached agreement with the city inside staff with a 5.2 per cent increase. Negotiations with the police union are carried out by the police commission and are still unsettled.

The city manager, who has been conducting negotiations with the outside staff, firemen and nurses for months, told council that the city's nine public health nurses Wednesday turned down a 5.2 per cent offer.

A government-appointed conciliation officer in attendance recommended appointment of a board, he added.

NURSES MAY ACCEPT

Mr. Wyatt said there were indications the nurses would accept a 7.43 per cent salary boost. (Original request was 16 per cent.) He recommended against the 7.43 per cent offer, feeling it would jeopardize dealings with the outside staff.

The city manager said Victoria firemen had also turned down 5.2 per cent but had asked a further meeting. He felt it would "serve no good purpose" and recommended the city have the dispute "placed before a board of conciliation without delay." Council agreed.

Conciliation board decisions are binding on police and firemen under provincial law. The firemen reportedly opened negotiations with a request for a wage increase of 21 per cent.

Decision Delayed In Assault Trial

Decision was reserved in an assault case against Robert Jerry Leon Wright, 1002 Fairfield, completed Thursday in Saanich police court.

Wright was remanded by Magistrate H. C. Hall to next Thursday.

A second assault charge will be heard then.

Wright is charged with assault causing bodily harm in connection with a beating last Sept. 24 of two homeward-bound militia soldiers.

The soldiers were James Albert Miller, 34, of 35 Obed, and Barrie Frederick Cave, 20, of 216 Gorge.

Now serving a sentence for assaulting Miller is David Lyn Ready, 24.

DOUKS TOLD TO MAKE OFFICIAL AID REQUEST

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sons of Freedom Doukhobors have been asked by Deputy Attorney-General Dr. G. D. Kennedy to draw up a written request for provincial government assistance in their projected exodus to the Soviet Union.

Dr. Kennedy Thursday met Vancouver lawyer John T. Steeves, counsel for the sect, to discuss the matter.

light among the little, olive trees at the base of the mountain. Jesus knew that He had a further task. He must tell them something of the future. They were innocent of the trials ahead; they were human reeds easily bent and broken; some, He knew, would not pass the first trial tonight. And yet He had to tell them so that, in remembering His words, they would, in the days ahead, be armed with His prophecies.

"If the world hates you," He said as they moved into a big cave cut in the limestone, "bear in mind that it has hated Me first. If you were children of the world, the world would cherish its own flesh and blood. But you are not children of the world; on the contrary, I have singled you out from the world, and therefore the world hates you."

Jesus was speaking, it seemed to His troubled Disciples, as if the hatred of the world—this hatred of the Messiah—should be taken for granted. But wasn't this contrary to everything they had learned, everything they had hoped? They would not be kings, then, sitting on thrones flanking His; instead they were to take His word out to people who would not listen, people who would scorn and revile, and often kill cruelly the men sent to them with the word of God. Now, for a time, they must have lost their vision of victory.

Thomas Reconciled

With good courage a man such as Peter could make an impetuous offer of his life, but here for a moment he lost his religious (and gallant) sense of victory in death. The Apostle Thomas was most easily reconciled to the brutal truth of future martyrdom. He would be the first to welcome such a role.

"Remember what I told you: a slave is not better off than his master. If they persecuted Me, they will persecute you also; if they took My teaching to heart, they will treat you in all these ways; for they do not know Him whose ambassador I am. Had I not come with a message to them, they would have no sin; as it is, they have no excuse for their sin."

"He who hates Me hates My Father also. Had I not done in their midst what no one else has ever done, they would have no sin; as it is, they have seen and hated both Me and My Father. How pitiful that this saying in their Law must needs be fulfilled. They have hated Me without cause!"

Feet Were Bare

One by one, the Apostles sat. A little light filtered from the moon through the olive trees into the cave. One stood and lit a few oil lamps along the wall and now they could see Jesus plainly in the feeble saffron glow. He looked taller, broader, and some noticed for the first time that His feet were bare.

A few stood leaning against the cave wall, understanding that this was the moment to chisel into their minds every feature, every aspect, every attitude and every word so that someday soon, when He would be no longer with them, they could say to the disciples of Jesus: "This is how He looked. This is how He talked."

This is what He told us to tell you.

No one knows what the Apostles thought of His most recent discourse, especially of the two references to "they would have no sin." Jesus had told the people, and more especially the Pharisees and the Sadducees, that the external signs of obedience to the law of God were as nothing; rubbish. They were as worthless as the rich, heavy bark of a tree which conceals the rot inside. He had come with a message of love; a command to love, from His Father, and they had been appalled.

"When the Advocate whom I am going to send you with a mission from the Father—the Spirit of truth, Who proceeds from the Father—has come, He will witness in My behalf," Jesus continued. "And you, too, will witness, because you have been with Me from the beginning."

This was the second time, within the hour, that He had assured the eleven that they would not be alone after He had gone.

"I have told you this; that you may not waver in your faith. You will be put out of the synagogue," He said quietly, and He looked about to see whether the fear which He sensed was apparent. It wasn't, and Jesus continued: "Not only that: a time is coming when anyone who kills you will think he is offering to God an act of supreme worship."

Those who had been leaning against the wall sat upright and listened. "And they will do this because they know neither the Father nor Me." Now human fear began to show in lines around the eyes of the men who listened.

"But enough!" the Messiah said. "I have told you this, so that, when the time comes for it to happen, you may recall that I told you so. I did not tell you all this at the outset, because I was still with you."

They were not comforted. They had accepted sudden death as daily risk in their business of fishing the Sea of Galilee, but to have the Messiah predict violent death for some of them because of the work they would do for love of Him was almost too much to bear. They looked at each other and some swallowed hard.

Jesus studied the tense faces in the dim light. "I tell you the truth: it is to your advantage that I depart. Unless I depart, the Advocate will not come to you; whereas, if I depart, I will send Him to you. There is still much that I might say to you; but you are not strong enough to bear it at present. But when He, the Spirit of truth, has come, He will conduct you through the whole range of truth."

Jesus had been their advocate in the flesh; now they would have a spiritual one who would never leave them. The sleepy Apostles joined the ones who were standing, and some walked around the cave to induce greater wakefulness. Here again was solace; when they did not have Jesus, the Paraclete would guide them. And the Paraclete was also a divine spirit like the Father and the Son.

Trinity Mystery

The eleven men closest to Jesus in His ministry to the world were beginning to have a slight understanding of the divine Trinity. They may not have comprehended the separate sides of the mystery—as, indeed, no man would ever understand it except, perhaps, to illustrate it with a figure of speech likening it to fog over an icy lake and pointing to the fact that the ice, the water and the fog are separate entities, but that each one is water.

But, for what He told them, they had progressed from the point of thinking of Yahweh as God one and alone, to God the Father and God the Son, and now, this evening, to God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost, equal and indivisible.

"A little while and you see Me no longer," Jesus said, "and again a little while, and you will see Me." This too mystified those who stood in the little gethsemane, because they did not relate it to His death—the words, to them, described a man going on a journey. They began to ask each other what was meant, and Jesus now was patient with them, fatigued as He was.

Weep and Lament

"Is this what you are discussing among yourselves, My saying: 'A little while, and you do not see Me; and again a little while, and you will see Me'? I must be perfectly frank with you: you will weep and lament, while the world rejoices. You will be plunged in sorrow, but your sorrow will be turned into joy."

"When a woman is about to give birth, she is in sorrow because her hour has come; but when she has brought forth her child, she no longer remembers her pangs for sheer joy that a human being has been born into the world."

"So you, too: at present you are in sorrow; but I shall see you again, and then your hearts will rejoice, and no one will take your joy away from you. That will be the time when you ask Me no more questions. . . . If you make any request of My Father, He will grant it to you in My name. Up to the present you made no requests in My name. Make them, and they will be granted. Thus nothing will be wanting to your joy."

Direct Challenge

This was not only the story of His death and of His resurrection from a new grave, but it was more than that—it was a direct challenge to doubters (if any existed among the eleven present) to prove the divinity of Jesus by asking the Father for something in His name. In the final 15 hours of His life, Jesus was prepared to have His Apostles put Him to the test.

"Thus far," He said, in His final discourse to them, "I have spoken to you in proverbs. A time is coming when I no longer speak to you in proverbs, but tell you about the Father in plain language. That will be the time when you make requests in My name; and I do not tell you that I shall petition the Father in your behalf. Of His own accord the Father loves you dearly; because you are settled in your love for Me and in your conviction that I come from the Father, I come from the Father and have come into the world."

"And now I am leaving the world and going home to the Father."

The eleven were so pleased with the little speech that they interrupted the discourse and, with happiness in their eyes, began to say: "There now. You are speaking plainly and avoid all figures of speech. Now we know that You know everything and need not wait till someone asks You. And that is why we believe that You come from God."

Jesus nodded in understanding, partly pleased, partly in sorrow. "You now believe?" He said. "Mark well: a time is coming, in fact, it is at hand, when you will scatter, each going back to his home, and leave Me all alone! Not that I am really alone, for the Father is with Me. I have forewarned you of this event, that you may find peace of soul in union with Me. In the world, afflictions are in store for you."

"But have courage," He said to them finally; "I have overcome the world."

MONTE ROBERTS

Larry Laybourne, the managing director of Time International of Canada, was born in the city of Springfield, in the state of Ohio, in the U.S.A.

And prior to his present appointment, he had spent only a few years resident in Canada.

So I guess he can be forgiven.

But what did he do at the luncheon here Wednesday at which he was the principal speaker?

He turned up wearing a Royal Canadian Navy tie.

I say, chaps. Really, now, not done, you know.

Despite the fact he had purchased it, in all innocence, at a Calgary shop.

It did not take Mr. Laybourne long to learn of his faux pas.

Because, seated near him at the head table, were not one, but two admirals—Rear-Admiral Herbert S. Rayner, Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, and Rear-Admiral James C. Hibbard (ret.), FORMER Flag Officer, Pacific Coast.

They took the offence in good part, but it should be an interesting captain's mast.

I was intensely interested to learn via the Associated Press that Rush Roberts, last surviving member of the Pawnee Indian scouts for the U.S. Army, died at the age of 99. No relation, but I knew Rush's uncle well.

He operated Ye Olde Pawnee Shoppe.

Word comes from B. Cox, 2680 Macdonald Drive, renewing speculation about the presence on this island of (you should excuse the expression) squirrels.

Writes B. Cox: "You were so positive about there being no squirrels around here that I waited to be sure they hadn't moved up-Island—they disappeared for the winter—but sure enough, they reappeared last weekend and greeted us vociferously. Friendly little characters, and they are NOT chipmunks."

All right, all right. But what's this about disappearing for the winter?

Winter in Victoria? A likely story.

And then there was the union man who said he'd be happy to be the first human being rocketed into space.

But naturally he wanted time-and-a-half for outer-time.

JUDGE CLEARIHUE

DEAN GAGE

College Head to Get Honorary UBC Degree

Judge J. B. Clearihue of Victoria and former Victoria College professor Dean Walter Gage will be among eight distinguished Canadians to receive honorary degrees at spring convocation ceremonies at University of British Columbia May 20-21.

It will mark the 50th anniversary of the university charter.

Judge Clearihue, a McGill graduate and member of the first Victoria College graduating class will receive an honorary doctorate of laws. He retired last year from the university board of governors after serving 22 years. Judge Clearihue has been chairman of the Victoria College council since 1947.

Dean Gage is best known to students as chairman of the joint faculty committee on prizes, scholarships and bursaries, and as a witty mathematical lecturer.

He is dean of administrative and inter-faculty affairs at UBC, and will also receive an honorary doctorate of laws.

BACK TO UBC

He received his master of arts degree from UBC in 1926, the year after receiving his bachelor of arts degree in mathematics. He joined the UBC faculty in 1926, and after teaching at Victoria College from 1927 to 1933, returned to UBC.

The congregation will also feature honorary doctorates of laws to Dr. A. E. "Dal" Grauer, president of the B.C. Electric Co. and present UBC chancellor; Mrs. Evelyn Lett, wife of the former chancellor, Chief Justice Sherwood Lett of the B.C. Supreme Court, and Mr. Justice A. E. Lord of the B.C. Supreme Court—all UBC graduates.

DISCOVERED MINES

Another UBC graduate, F. R. Joubin of Toronto, will receive an honorary doctorate of science. He directed the discovery of 10 uranium mines in three provinces between 1953 and 1956.

Graduates of other universities who will receive honorary doctorates of laws, including Judge Clearihue, will be Ralph Pybus, Vancouver, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. J. E. Wallace Sterling, president of Stanford University since 1949.

University officials said they also plan two special congregations in September to mark the B.C. centenary, with dates and names of those honored to be announced later.

House Fund May Prevent Court Action

Help of many Victorians may save Gerard Audet, 3148 Mars, from court action on a charge of violating the building bylaw by living in an unfinished house.

A "house-finishing" fund launched by F. J. Knudsen, 140 Olive, reached $522 today, and Mr. Audet, appearing in city court, estimated work would be completed in one month.

Assistant city building inspector Alex James told the court the house would be certified as safe for occupancy when it is stuccoed, doors are hung and floors finished.

An unemployed shipyard worker, Mr. Audet has been supporting his wife and seven children since November on $30 a week unemployment insurance and family allowance payments.

Magistrate H. C. Hall remanded the case to April 18.

Private School Boys Depart On U.K. Tour

Leaving Vancouver's International Airport "over-the-Pole" today on the trip of a lifetime are 25 boys and three masters of B.C.'s three main private schools.

The group forms the first schoolboy English rugby team in history to leave Canada and invade the heart of the world's rugby regime.

The team is made up of seven players from University School in Victoria, and nine each from Shawnigan Lake Boys' School and St. George's of Vancouver.

They will spend two weeks in Great Britain, playing a series of six matches with representative teams in both Scotland and England.

But this is only part of the trip. Headmaster of University School, J. J. Timmis, who will accompany the team as manager, feels the educational value of the trip is tremendous.

The boys will make extensive tours to such places as Oxford, Magdalen and Christchurch Colleges, Mansion House (the home of the Lord Mayor of London), Edinburgh Castle, the House of Commons and Windsor Castle.

They also will be guests at the House of Commons and B.C. House in London where they will meet the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayress of London, the Right Hon. Sir Dennis Truscott and Lady Truscott, and the Lord Mayor of Westminster, Sir Charles and Lady Norton.

The boys will play teams from Harrow, Lowlands, Midlands and Highland Reps of Scotland, Epsom and Eton.

Unemployment Total Drops 276 in Week

The total number of unemployed registered in the National Employment Office is now the lowest since early December, 1957, as the figure for the week dropped by 276, it was reported today.

The number of male applicants decreased by a further 130 and the number of unemployed women dropped for the first time since mid-summer 1957.

Total figures for the last two weeks show a drop in male unemployment from 4,279 to 4,149 and in female unemployment from 1,736 to 1,590.

University officials said they also plan two special congregations in September to mark the B.C. centenary, with dates and names of those honored to be announced later.

Revised Welfare Approach Urged

Greater Emphasis Asked On Self-Sustaining Plan

A greater emphasis on assisting welfare cases to be self-sustaining, instead of merely doling out relief, was proposed for Victoria today by welfare administrator William Hooson.

In a report to city council, Mr. Hooson suggested a re-arrangement of staff to free a trained caseworker to such a project.

Explaining the philosophy of his department, he stated: "The traditional practice of the 'relief office' has been to dole out relief in as niggardly a manner as possible on the assumption that such a procedure would discourage the poor from applying for aid.

UNALTERED

"In many parts of Canada and the U.S., the name 'relief' has been changed to 'social or public welfare' but the attitudes and opinions of some administrators and the general public... has largely remained unaltered.

"Many still feel that poverty is solely due to laziness or personality defect... and is to be equated with sinfulness."

Such is not the case in B.C., he added. Over the last 20 years, welfare agencies have "humanized" their programs.

ON MERITS

"Each case is dealt with on its individual merits... assistance is considered to be the right of a citizen in times of need, and not just a handout by a benevolent community."

He said the object of rehabilitation services is to "... enable the individual to regain employment and become self-supporting." A trained caseworker can accomplish a great deal in this line, he felt. "If the client is emotionally acclimated to the prospect of finding for himself."

He pointed out his department is overloaded at present.

Scouts, Cubs To Get Awards For Service

An Oak Bay Scoutmaster, a Victoria Scout and two Victoria Cubs will be honored in Vancouver Friday, March 31, with awards for outstanding service and conduct.

The awards will be presented by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross.

Windsor Park troop Scoutmaster W. D. McFarland, 1899 Townley, will receive the medal of merit for his organizational work and devotion to his troop over a number of years.

Wayne Boyd, 14, formerly of the Sayward troop in northern Vancouver Island, will receive a certificate of merit for gallantry, won when he saved the life of 16-year-old Delwin Flesch who fell through the ice while the boys were skating.

CATHEDRAL PACK

Cubs Charles Ball and Randy Fry, both aged eight and of the 2nd Cathedral Pack, will receive certificates of meritorious conduct.

Last year in March the boys found 2½-year-old Michael Braden laying face down in a hole filled with mud and water. They pulled him out and got treatment for the child.

Charles lives at 76 Menzies and Randy at 118 Menzies.

Guest speaker at the Scout dinner will be Times editor Bruce Hutchison and chairman will be Times publisher Stuart Keate, president, Boy Scouts Association of B.C. and the Yukon.

HOT STUFF FOR TOWN SHOPPERS

Temperature in the area shortly after noon today veered from 49 degrees at the weather office on Gonzales Heights to 61 degrees in protected downtown areas.

Forecast was for temperatures from 38 degrees overnight to 50 degrees today. Tonight will see more frost in the area, with temperatures in the high 20s to low 30s.

Forecast for Saturday is mostly clear skies and temperatures similar to today.

Sunshine, though not necessarily warm weather, has been a feature of March so far. To date there have been 96 hours of sun, compared with 63 during the entire month of February.

Two Missing In Boat For Week

A search was underway today for two men missing in a light outboard motorboat off the Vancouver Island coast.

The Royal Canadian Air Force and search and rescue centre said in Vancouver the two men aboard the 15½-foot craft left Kelsey Bay, north of Campbell River, last week, and had not been heard from since.

The so far unidentified men did not state their destination. Search officials said they believe the men had intended to take a coastal cruise.

Vote Unlikely On Compulsory Arbitration

A motion by George Gregory (Lib.-Victoria) to have compulsory arbitration in utility company labor disputes has been placed on the legislative order paper.

It is doubtful, however, that the proposal will be put to a vote in the House.

The motion asks leave to amend another act introduced earlier in the session by Mr. Gregory that would grant full bargaining rights to civil servants.

Since this act is unlikely to pass second reading, the amendment may never reach the floor. But there may be discussion of it during second reading.

The Liberal member has urged the action in view of the present electrical workers' strike which he said could cripple the province's economy.

VICTIM OF MECHANIZATION

'Queen's' Reign In Park to End?

By MONTE ROBERTS

The remaining days in the reign of Beacon Hill Park's Queen appear to be numbered.

The Queen is the good-natured, well-mannered four-footed friend whose job it is to draw a two-wheeled, rubber-tired cart on behalf of the park's maintenance crew.

The Queen is a broad-shouldered, docile member of the equine family, and is the last working horse in the city of Victoria.

She's been on the job for the last three years, replacing a predecessor who went the way of all flesh.

Parks Board officials said today it seems certain the Queen will fall victim to mechanization.

Upkeep appears to be too heavy for the work accomplished, although, in the original concept, a horse was used instead of a truck because her rubber shoes enabled her to cross lawns without damage to the grass.

But the rubber shoes also cause the rub—it costs $17.50 per shoeing, and replacements are needed four to five times a year.

Also, she is getting along in years—her exact age is not known—and is apt to pull up lame on occasion.

This, say park board officials, means an interruption in the flow of work, because there's no replacement available for her.

DEER ENCLOSURE

In her non-working hours, the Queen takes up residence in the deer enclosure, where she often occasions startled comments from city bred youngsters seeing their first honest-to-real equine.

But the Queen may soon be dethroned. And at that time, the cry could well be: "The Queen is dead—long live progress."

Mmm... Asparagus Spikes Make a Tempting Dish

By PENNY SAVER

Had a yen for asparagus today... fresh asparagus. Creamed with cheese. So, I went out to search for some and found just what I was looking for: Tender-looking spikes of asparagus, deep green and very fresh. You can enjoy it too, at only 39 cents a pound.

Apples are at their crispy, succulent best right now. Nothing's more refreshing than biting into a ripe Delicious apple that's been kept in the refrigerator an hour or so. They sell at three pounds for 49c. B.C.-grown McIntosh apples are two pounds for 35c and Rome Beauties are three pounds for 39c (down 10c since yesterday).

If there are kiddies in the house, you can delight them by buying a whole coconut and breaking it up into chunks for them to nibble at. Come to think of it... adults in the family will probably be just as pleased with the treat as the youngsters! Buy coconuts at 29 cents apiece.

With St. Patrick's Day in the offing (this Monday, to be exact) you'll want to stock up on a few candy favors for the children. You can buy dark or milk chocolate Irish pipes for just 15 cents each.

Paddy's well-known pig, also in chocolate, comes at 50 cents and you can buy a little sack, actually made of burlap, filled with candy "spuds"... at 50c a sack.

Here's something for the cocktail hostess who's worrying about having interesting tidbits to pass to her guests. She'll especially like these, because they require no preparation, save opening the jar and arranging in serving dishes.

I'm talking about "salami crisps"... crackers with a salami taste; French fried bacon rinds with an onion flavor; garlic puffs and cheese rings. All sell at 59c a jar.

Instead of using potato chips to dip into that favorite clam dip of yours, use "clam curls"... crisps with a definite clam flavor at 59c a jar.

Salted Mexican pumpkin seeds make for good nibbling and so do salted pistachios... the former at 59c a jar and the latter at 69c a jar.

Call me at 2-3131 if you'd like to know where to buy these items.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

'Just Plain Fat Under My Arms Bothers Me Most'

Q—"I am fat under my arms. My bra leaves a roll under the arm. This isn't a lump, it is just plain fat. I am overweight but this is the spot which bothers me most."

A—A general loss of weight will, of course, help. Also do this exercise: Stand tall. Raise the right arm overhead, turn the palm outward and touch the left ear with the fingers of the right hand. Return arm to starting position. Continue. After a while do the same thing with the left arm, touching the right ear with the fingers of the left hand.

Q—"I would like to know if this stuff you hear and read about how to turn grey hair back to its normal color is harmful in any way, and would you advise people to use it?"

A—So far as I know there is no product which will turn grey hair back to its normal color. There has been some evidence that vitamin B complex may have some influence but this is inconclusive.

Q—"I am 34 years old and have been married for 20 years. I have five children and nursed all of them. My bust is so flat. In fact I practically have no bust. Is there anything I can do? Can a doctor do something?"

A—You can build up the chest muscles with exercise and therefore increase the bust measurement. Plastic surgery also can remedy this situation.

Q—"I am not allowed to shave my legs and have dark hair which embarrasses me very much. My mother says if I shave my hair it will grow out thicker."

A—This is not true. The hair will not grow out any thicker but the ends will be stubby when the hair grows out because of the cutting. However, it is too bad to be embarrassed about this since you can remove the hairs by shaving or with a depilatory. The only permanent method of removal is electrolysis.

Q—"I have very small spider-like veins on my upper legs. What causes these and is there any make-up to cover them?"

A—Most women have some of these. Overweight and tight garments and long hours on the feet seem to make one more susceptible. There is a product which will cover them. If you wish to have its name, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for this information. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

SPRING OPENING AT COLWOOD

Ladies' division, Royal Colwood Golf Club, held its spring opening on Thursday with a luncheon in the clubhouse followed by a two-ball foursome. Among those attending were, from the left, Mrs. Cliff Denham, Miss Ruth Jones, second vice-president, Canadian Ladies' Golf Union; Mrs. D. Ross, wife of the president of Colwood Club, and Mrs. Frank Skilling. Among special guests was Mrs. R. L. Pocock, honorary member of the club; Mrs. W. Mearns and Mrs. Jack Todd, members of the CLGU. Ladies' division captain, Mrs. H. McKenzie, presided at the luncheon.

'Free-Form' Line Feature of Show

From breath-taking Paris originals to natty sports ensembles, the T. Eaton Company fashion show Thursday took Miss and Mrs. Victoria right through spring to summer.

Importance of color—this year, golden sun-drenched hues through to vibrant blues—mixed with the importance of the new free-form silhouette.

The show featured the "chemise compromise"

subtly shaped and softened, tempered with classic lines.

A new arrival from France was the chemise-line suit modelled by Helen Bernes. Designed by Madeline Casolino, the skirt is simple, leaving all fashion detail to the jacket, which shows a tailored pique front with low back blousing.

Suit is of finest dress-weight wool.

Combining the chemise with the popular "middy look," Pam Young stepped into the spotlight wearing a navy dress with white linen middy collar and red and white polka-dotted tie silk scarf.

A pure silk "harem dress" was modelled by Joan Young. Deep pink roses patterned against a dark grey background was the fabric chosen for this stylish dress with a full, poofed skirt caught low in front with three self bows.

Chemise line coat was modelled by Jan Joslin. Harry Algo of Paris designed it with molded line in front and a separate, loose top at back, in French blue wool.

Sports ensembles featured a centennial tartan in slim jim slacks, jumpers, pleated skirts and jackets. Printed chiffon created a drifting garden party dress for model Pat Hummel. With simple bodice and long sleeves, the dress featured a full, flowing skirt.

NOT RESERVED Mrs. J. Crossley proved the chemise line is not reserved solely for the tall, willowy or young alone, when she modelled a green shantung dress in the new, loose-line styling, designed for the fashion-conscious matron.

Nona Damaske appeared in a striking dinner dress of pure silk in a fresh green and white floral print. Neckline was squared back and front and the figure-molding green velvet cummerbund was finished with velvet flowers.

The show, sponsored by the Women's Committee to the Art Gallery, was repeated this afternoon. Convener was Mrs. George Strath Jr. assisted by Mrs. B. G. Alley, Mrs. Lloyd McKenzie, Mrs. A. R. Alexander, Mrs. T. Juelsberg, Mrs. E. Shaw, Mrs. H. J. Greig and Mrs. Simon Marinker.

Commentator of the show was Ida Clarkson and co-ordinator was Kay Ellis.

Duplicate Gifts:

Two uncles, living in the same town, gave us subscriptions to the same magazine. We decided to say nothing to either uncle about it, and thought it would be nice to send one of the magazines (just as it arrives in the mail) to someone else. Was that correct or should we have mentioned it to both uncles?

Louise Davis Answers:

I think that it would ease your consciences if you tell both uncles what has happened. Before you do it, it would be a good idea to have alternative plans so you can ask for an approval. Surely neither of them would expect you to feel duty bound to accept both. I have two suggestions. Write a letter to the publishing company and state what has happened. It is possible that the company publishes other magazines that might be to your liking and in that case perhaps you can make a switch. The other suggestion is to cancel this year's subscription and apply it to next year. I think the two uncles will enjoy the coincidence as a good joke on themselves!

New Estates Tax Bill Disappoints The National Council of Women

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Council of Women Tuesday urged its members to tell election candidates they are disappointed in a new estates tax bill introduced at the last Parliament.

The council for several years now has urged the government to provide an exemption from succession duties of $50,000 for all estates. A letter to council members said this was not provided in the bill introduced in January and now being circulated for comment among groups interested in succession duties matters.

The government has said it will consider the comments on the bill before asking Parliament to make it law.

The legislation provides that all estates valued at $50,000 or less will be exempt from succession duties. But those of more than that amount receive exemption of only $30,000 of the total value, leaving the difference between the total value and the $30,000 exemption liable to duty, with exceptions for widows, dependent husbands and dependent children.

In the case of a widow, $60,

000 of the estate is exempt from duty with an additional $10,000 for each dependent child under 21. In the case of a woman's estate left to her dependent husband and at least one dependent child, $60,000 of the estate is exempt from duty.

A limit also is placed on the amount of duty that may be collected from estates of more than $50,000. The maximum duty must not exceed half the difference between the total value of the estate and $50,000. The council also expressed disappointment that the proposed bill does not acknowledge wives as marriage partners. The council urges that one-half a deceased husband's estate be conceded—for tax purposes—as earned by his widow and as such would not be subject to succession duty when it passes to her on his death.

Extreme or Moderate— New Styles Dramatic

Women who hoped to see the new look in its most extreme shapes were satisfied, Thursday, at the Hudson's Bay Company's showing of spring fashions.

Reactions to the unfitted chemise, balloon backs and lantern skirts were mostly negative, but spectators nevertheless enjoyed gazing at the dramatic creations which would most certainly create a stir if worn in Victoria.

Show co-ordinator and commentator, Adele Gault, presented the true picture of high fashion as seen in recent Paris and New York showings. However, she wisely showed many modifications of the new look which Victoria women would dare to step out in.

Most sensational costume of the show was a nubby wool suit modelled by Mary Rawnsley. Over the slim skirt was a "chemise stroller jacket", fully bloused not to the waist or hips, but right down to the thighs, where it was drawn into a snug band.

No one could complain that the straight-line chemise dress worn by Crystal Burton hid her trim figure, for beneath the loose dress of sheer blue silk she wore a form-fitting sheath of matching blue. The over-dress, patterned with white polka dots, fell in a straight column to the hemline, where it poofed out in big rosettes of the same silk fabric.

What last year would have been termed a sheath dress with floating back panel has been changed to fit requirements of the "New Look". The voluminous floating silk panel was attached to the hemline, so that it ballooned out as it caught the air when model Crystal Burton walked.

Frances Wainwright modelled the navy shantung dress with the "bubble bottom" skirt. From a slim, fitted waistline, the skirt belled into a spherical shape, which closed into a sheath width hemline of white lace.

Mimosa yellow silk formed a smart spring suit for June Charlton. When she unbuttoned the short-length jacket, she revealed a smart sheath dress with waist-nipping cummerbund and matching mimosa chiffon draped over the shoulders in lieu of sleeves.

The chemise with fitted, belted front, but full-blousing back was showed by model Doris Usher, in soft gold slub silk.

Climax of the show was a bridal party, with Frances Wainwright as the bride, Ellen McConchy as mother of the bride and the other models as attendants.

Sponsors of the show, which will be repeated Saturday at 11 a.m. and 2.30 p.m. in the Douglas Room are CNIB Auxiliary; IODE chapters Royal Roads, HMCS Beacon Hill and Oak Leaf Junior; WA to Esquimalt United Church, Beta Sigma Phi city council and St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society Caledonians.

PLANS and Specifications

MATERIAL LIST

and COMPLETE INSTRUCTIONS

This plan embodies all the advantages of fir plywood construction and is excellent for fishing on bays, lakes, or streams.
It is relatively fast and holds four people comfortably.

It is sturdy with 3/8" marine grade Douglas fir plywood planking on sides and bottom. Yet it is easy to build as planking with plywood means a single panel forms each side with two panels covering the bottom.

As the initial step in preparing to build this plywood boat, make a thorough study of the plans, noting carefully the construction details of each station, and reviewing the materials listed in the fir plywood and lumber order.

Obtain the required plywood, lumber and other materials from your local retail lumber dealer.

In ordering plywood, be sure to specify Douglas fir plywood which has completely water proof bond for all outdoor and marine applications.

HAPPY FATHER AGAIN

Prince Rainier of Monaco holds his daughter, Caroline and waves happily from balcony in Monte Carlo today following birth of his first son to his wife, the former Grace Kelly. The princeling replaces his sister as heir. (AP Wirephoto.)

BECOMES HEIR

It's a Boy For Gracie And Prince

MONTE CARLO (AP)—Princess Grace of Monaco today gave birth to her first son—the new heir to the throne of the principality of Monaco.

The royal palace said the baby weighed 8½ pounds. He will be christened Albert Alexandre Louis Pierre.

The baby displaces his 13-month-old sister, Princess Caroline, in the succession to his father, Prince Rainier, Monaco's 31st sovereign.

The boom of the 101-gun salute—it would have been only 21 for a girl—set off wild rejoicing in the 367-acre principality on the French Riviera.

The births of both Caroline and Albert provided Monaco's 2,500 citizens with ample cause for rejoicing. Barring tragedy, they ensure the survival of the advantages of living in an independent, income-tax-free state that has no compulsory military service.

If Rainier were to die without a successor, the pocket principality, rolling in wealth from its gambling casino, would be annexed by France under a 1919 treaty.

Huge Naval Armada At Halifax

HALIFAX (BUP)—The present-day aircraft carrier will be replaced in the future by a combination aircraft carrier-missile launcher and submarine.

Admiral Sir William W. Davis said on arrival here today. Davis, commander in chief of the Royal Navy's Home Fleet, and NATO naval commander for the Eastern Atlantic area, also said that the nuclear-powered submarine will become the "dominating and all-important" factor in naval strategy.

Davis arrived at the head of a big armada of 29 British and Canadian warships. The combined fleet, the biggest to enter a Canadian port in modern times, is carrying out the most extensive naval manoeuvres ever held by British forces in the Atlantic.

9,000 Jam Auditorium To Hear PM

John D. Promises Bill of Rights

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Correspondent

VANCOUVER—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker addressing the biggest and noisiest meeting of his campaign to date disclosed here Thursday that the justice department is considering a draft of a bill of rights. It will be first submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada.

He aroused tremendous enthusiasm at the mass meeting and for the first time this campaign encountered a barrage of heckling and boos. There were more than 8,000 jammed into the Forum and about 1,000 more were turned away, with about 200 remaining to listen to the address over loudspeakers outside the main hall.

The repeated jeers and shouts designed to embarrass the prime minister and throw him off his stride only added to the excitement and entertainment for the huge crowd. Mr. Diefenbaker with the benefit of loudspeakers out-shouted the hecklers.

ANSWERS PICKED

"I picked the ones I wanted to answer. That's the secret. It adds to a meeting," he said laughingly after he returned to his hotel suite.

The prime minister explained after the mass meeting that the bill of rights would be submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada in the form of a reference. In this way it will be left to the highest court in Canada to determine the subjects which could be placed in a federal bill of rights without infringing provincial constitutional powers.

"How about Duplessis?" a heckler shouted. "He's your pal."

The prime minister attracted a crowd of about 3,000 more than attended Liberal leader Hon. L. B. Pearson's meeting in the same Forum at Vancouver.

The huge audience at the Diefenbaker rally gave him more applause—interrupting him nearly 50 times—while the crowd also gave Mr. Diefenbaker more boos and heckled him more often than Mr. Pearson's crowd.

There was a carnival atmosphere at the opening of the Conservative rally. A lively orchestra and three vocalists

PEARSON BACKS COYNE STAND

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (BUP)—Liberal Leader Lester Pearson today supported Bank of Canada governor James Coyne's statement Thursday that an easy money policy if applied would harm Canada's economy.

Pearson said Coyne gave a good objective analysis of the situation and his report entirely disposed of wild Conservative statements on the consequences of a "tight money policy."

He said his illicit romance "broke up my home" but "I loved Rosalie very much."

Pallow said he felt his relationship with Miss Leis was breaking up. He went to Miss Leis' home early Friday morning, and the couple walked down a lonely lane where Pallow said he shot her once.

He said she fell to her knees and begged: "Kill me quick." Then he fired five more bullets from the .22 revolver.

Two Fliers Decorated

OTTAWA (BUP)—Queen Elizabeth has approved gallantry awards to two RCAF members for their part in the rescue of a pair of fishermen near Galiano Island in B.C.

The two are F/L Andrew G. Carswell, 34, of Toronto, who has been awarded the Air Force Cross, and Sgt. Ian J. McPherson, 35, of Vancouver, who has been awarded the British Empire Medal.

B.C. Flier Killed

OTTAWA (CP)—Air force headquarters reported Flying Officers Frank A. Grant of Toronto and Robert A. Ashmore of White Rock, B.C., were killed today in the crash of the CF-100 jet in France.

INDONESIA NAVY SHELLS REBEL HARBOR PADANG

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—Indonesian Navy ships shelled rebel-held Padang Harbor today, injuring several people and destroying some houses before being driven off by shore batteries, Padang rebel radio said tonight.

The radio said the battle for Pekanbaru is still on, and that two ships bringing government reinforcements up the Siak River had been sunk by bazooka fire.

No Tight Money Policy—Coyne

Bank of Canada Chief Drops Bombshell Into Election Fight

OTTAWA (CP)—The head of Parliament's non-political Bank of Canada has dropped a potentially-explosive political issue into the March 31 general election campaign.

Governor James E. Coyne, of the central bank, which has a big hand in shaping Canadian monetary policy, says there has been no such thing as a "tight money" program so far as the bank is concerned.

The $50,000-a-year bank chief said this in his annual report to Progressive Conservative Finance Minister Donald Fleming, one of the government spokesmen who have stated that damage was done to the Canadian economy by a Liberal "tight money" policy before the election of last June 10. The report was made public Thursday.

In the current political warfare, Conservatives have been claiming that it was their easing of such a policy in late summer that staved off a more severe recession than the one now hitting Canada.

Mr. Coyne, an appointee of the previous government, does not refer directly to Conservative knocks at "tight money" in his report for 1957. He states, rather, that "an impression seems to have arisen" that the money supply was shrinking.

Actually it was increasing, he said, but despite this the impression of "tight money" arose because of unusually large demand for money.

Last month, Liberal James Sinclair, former fisheries minister and now the chief financial critic for his party in Parliament, suggested in a speech that the Coyne report was being concealed.

"Hidden," he said, "is the annual report of the Bank of Canada, which would have to be tabled if Parliament was sitting—a report which will confirm the steady decline in the national economy since the Conservative government took office."

By statute, the report has to be turned in to the finance minister by the end of February.

Mr. Coyne's report is dated Feb. 28. No available officials would say Thursday just when it was received by the minister, except that he had received it within the prescribed time.

The exact meaning of the "tight money" catch-phrase has never been specifically spelled out. In general, it appears to mean money for loans that is hard to get, either because of unattractively-high interest rates or because of scarcity of it.

The phrase "tight money policy" may sometimes be used to refer to matters other than monetary matters, such as policy with regard to government taxation, expenditure and lending.

"To the extent that the phrase might be taken to imply a contraction in the availability of money it is not applicable."

"In this sense of the phrase there has never been a 'tight money policy' in Canada since the establishment of the central bank 23 years ago."

New Worlds of Potential Power Opened by Underground A-Blast

NEW YORK (CP)—A "little, tiny" atomic bomb exploded underground last September crushed 400,000 tons of rock and made a "mountain jump six inches. The Times says in a Washington dispatch.

It quotes Dr. Willard F. Libby of the Atomic Energy Commission as telling a Senate foreign relations subcommittee that the test explosion showed:

"We've decided to put pickets in," Whiteford said. "I don't know exactly when we'll do it, but I'm sure we will."

A problem facing the union is how to picket the project in Seymour Narrows of Georgia Strait. One suggestion is a picket boat.

"But we'll have to be careful," said one teamster official. "After all, we don't want to be blown up."

In spite of the threat from the teamsters, explosives are still being loaded into the tunnels and coyote hole drilled into the twin peaks of the rock, and when the switch is closed 2,750,000 pounds of Nitramex 2H will rip the top 40 feet off the rock. The size of the charge has been doubled to ensure destruction of the rock.

The project is under the jurisdiction of the federal public works department, and Works Minister Howard Green expects to be at the nearest observation post for the big blast.

MUST CLEAR OUT

All but authorized persons will be evacuated within a three-mile radius for the blowing up of the Seymour Narrows navigational menace. Zero hour is 8:30 a.m. PST April 5 if conditions are right. If they are not the big blow will be set back from day to day until they are. RCMP will direct evacuation.

Effect on Taxes, Homes Uncertain

By PETE LOUDON

Costs of operating Greater Victoria schools this year will increase by $734,510 to a new high of $5,887,671—a 14 per cent increase.

The estimates were presented to district municipal councils this morning.

Whether the increase will be reflected in local tax boosts, or whether a greater share of costs will be accepted by the provincial government, is still unknown.

Proposed changes in the basis of provincial-municipal cost-sharing are before the B.C. legislature.

These changes, contained in the new Public Schools Act, provide for increased grants from the province, as well as increases in the basic contribution by municipalities.

STANDSTILL

Until the amount of the grants is made known, municipal and school board financing is at a standstill.

In a letter accompanying the estimates, school board secretary-treasurer T. L. Christie told each council:

"... estimated revenue and apportionment of costs to the component parts of the school district will be represented as soon as the necessary information on the new legislation is available."

Total 1958 expenditures are shown as $5,887,671, as compared to $5,153,161 in 1957 estimates.

Last year, almost half the total, $2,624,976, was raised by local taxation. Victoria paid

50.50 per cent, Esquimalt 5.20 per cent, Oak Bay 15.60, Saanich 26.76 and the unorganized area within the school district 1.94 per cent.

MORE STUDENTS

Mr. Christie said increases in school costs are attributable to increased numbers of students and teachers, plus an increased teacher salary rate, (about 6 per cent.)

The board's building program also has increased debt services costs.

He pointed out student enrolment this year is increased by 1,337 for a total of 17,869. There are 40 more teachers on the payroll.

A 5-per cent salary increase was granted administration staff, and superannuation costs have increased. For the first time, the board is also contributing to a medical-health plan for employees.

UP $400,000

Teacher salaries are up $400,000—about half this increase being due to the increases in staff.

The rise in operation and maintenance of schools is "quite normal" and in keeping with expansion of the school system, Mr. Christie added.

He said the school board is prepared to meet with any municipal council in the area to discuss the schedule of costs.

Girl Tried to Shoot Officer, Shot Down

TOPPENISH, Wash. (AP)—A rookie patrolman shot and killed a 16-year-old girl in a crowded bus station Thursday as she fumbled with the safety catch on an automatic pistol aimed at him.

Witnesses said Sandra Ling-scheit, only child of a farm couple living on a Columbia Basin irrigation project at Eltopia, Wash., ignored three warnings to throw down her gun.

Two .38 slugs hit her in the chest.

The girl and a companion, Janice Teel, also 16, of Pasco, Wash., had been stopped as runaways as they alighted from a bus.

Patrolman Richard Stevens, 33, told Police Chief Earl Phillips he had no recourse but to shoot the girl, whose gun posed a threat to the some 50 persons crowded into the small bus depot in this south-central Washington city.

Stevens said he had tried to get close to the girl, but failing that had "acted as any police officer would."

Group Studies 60 MPH Limit On Highways

Appointment of a special group to investigate the possibility of increasing the speed limit on some B.C. highways to 60 miles an hour was disclosed today by Highways Minister Gagliardi.

The minister said the committee is headed by deputy highways minister Evan Jones, and includes other members of his department as well as representatives of the RCMP and B.C. Automobile Association.

The minister said he is taking a "cautious" approach to raising the speed limit in some districts.

"But if we can do it with the same amount of safety as today—okay."

DEATH PACT CLAIMED

Beauty Queen Shot 6 Times by Lover

BEAVER, Pa. (AP)—A 25-year-old mill worker says he pumped six bullets into his beauty queen girl friend because they had a secret pact that "one of us was going to die" if their romance broke up.

Theodore Pallow, on Friday, walked into this western Pennsylvania community and said: "I just killed a girl."

Police found the body of 21-year-old Miss Rosalie Leis at the foot of a tree not far from her home.

The comely blonde won several local beauty contests and in 1955 was runner-up to Miss Pennsylvania in the Miss Universe competition.

Pallow, estranged from his wife and seven-months old child, faces a murder charge. He said his illicit romance "broke up my home" but "I loved Rosalie very much."

Pallow said he felt his relationship with Miss Leis was breaking up. He went to Miss Leis' home early Friday morning, and the couple walked down a lonely lane where Pallow said he shot her once.

He said she fell to her knees and begged: "Kill me quick." Then he fired five more bullets from the .22 revolver.

THE DAY CHRIST DIED

By JIM BISHOP

(A Condensation of The Book)

INSTALLMENT 6

It was past midnight now, and the eyes of the fishermen were heavy and their feet were slow. Besides, their Lord had said so much that their brains ached with remembering.

They did not complain because they sensed that this night they might receive the last of many lessons from the Messiah and they knew that they would have to remember, before they could apply the word. These men were very human. Grief for the suffering and impending death of his beloved Jesus must have stunned young John, just as the humility of his brother James surely prevented appreciation of his own adequacy for the job ahead.

Soon they were underneath the cemetery outside the wall, and in the darkness the sepulchres and the little ossuaries looked like so many broken teeth. Near here they crossed the stone bridge over the Brook Cedron and took the road on the far side toward the little gethsemane where they would sleep.

When they came abreast of the three great mausoleums—one of which was built to the memory of Absalom—which had been standing gaunt and friendless for 500 years, Jesus glanced briefly at them. He had condemned memorials to the dead a long time ago. Now He stopped again.

'Love One Another'

"This is My commandment." Again He said, "Love one another as I love you. No one can give greater proof of his love than by laying down his life for his friends. You are My friends"—He looked around at the wan, bearded faces—"provided you do what I command you."

Surely, this often-repeated commandment to love had now taken root in the Apostles' hearts. It would not only sustain them during the hours that lay just ahead, but, of course, become the central theme and identification of Christians throughout the ages.

They were 200 yards from the little olive press in the miniature valley which separates Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives. For some time now, since they had crossed the brook, they had been bearing away from the city. At the gethsemane, the

Randolph Harding, the good-humored CCF member for Kaslo-Slocan, has a problem on his mind.

He is wondering (already) whether the British Columbians of 50 years hence will be asking:

"What was a Social Credit?"

Mr. Harding is so concerned for the people of 2008 A.D. that he wants the legislature to keep a Hansard (verbatim) record of speeches so that they may be read and studied by the people of that advanced era—which may well include pneumatic weather-proof clothes and a five-day weekend.

If we had a Hansard, said Mr. Harding, people 50 years from now would be able to learn about Social Credit—and why!

Premier Bennett, of course, could not miss this opportunity for a profound statement aimed at the historians of 2008 A.D.

"This period will live in the annals of the province as an era of progress and development."

He did not feel, however, that the historians of 50 years hence needed any Hansard to assist them. The government's record of achievement would be a standing monument to its foresight and wisdom.

Mr. Harding refused to be overawed by this grandiloquence. He insisted that, if the people of 2008 could read Hansard reports of speeches made under Secret rule, they might get a glimmer of what it was all about.

Social Credit J. Donald Smith, Victoria, broke ranks with the government and voted for a Hansard.

Teachers Planning 'Deluge Protest'

A "deluge protest"—flooding of local legislative members with objections against sections of the proposed new Public Schools Act—was planned Thursday by Greater Victoria Teachers Association.

An emergency meeting at S. J. Willis Junior High drew an estimated 400 members. Called on short notice, the meeting was unable to formally pass resolutions, but agreement on the proposed course of action was general.

FINES

The teachers oppose a clause which provides fines for anyone "trying to obstruct employment . . . or trying to dissuade a teacher from seeking a job in any district."

This would rule out "blacklisting" as is now being carried out in several B.C. school districts, including Greater Victoria. When no agreement could be reached on 1958 wage negotiations, teachers advised fellow workers in other parts of the province to avoid seeking work here.

U.K. Tories Lose Second Seat to Labor

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, shaken by his government's second defeat at the polls within a month, faced renewed Laborite demands today for him to "get out" and a threatened rank-and-file revolt among his own ruling Conservatives.

The Conservatives lost a seat to Labor in a key by-election Thursday in the "marginal" Kelvingrove constituency of Glasgow.

Just a month ago they lost the Lancashire cotton town of Rochdale—also to Labor.

Western Arms Proposal Fogs Summit Reds Say

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia today accused the Western powers of trying to "distract attention" from an East-West summit conference by seeking the resumption of disarmament negotiations within the United Nations.

Western 'Big Two' To Discuss 'Summit'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan will meet here in June to co-ordinate Western planning for a summit conference with Russia.

The White House announced Thursday that the meeting will be held June 9-10. By that time the issue of whether to hold a summit conference will likely be settled, officials believe, and most of them privately say they are sure there will be a conference.

Other subjects expected to come up in the Eisenhower-Macmillan sessions include co-operation between the United States and Britain in atomic energy developments, U.S. supplies of nuclear missiles for British bases, Middle Eastern problems, East-West trade and a review of conditions in the Far East.

A statement from the Soviet foreign ministry quoted reports in the foreign press that the Western powers are planning to summon the UN disarmament commission.

This is the 25-nation commission established against Russian protests last December. The commission, which has not yet met, replaces the former body composed of the 11-power Security Council plus Canada.

(In New York, however, the Soviet delegate to the UN said his country had not ruled out the possibility of taking part in a procedural debate as proposed by the West.)

NIGHT ROAMERS

Nocturnal in their habits, raccoons are seldom seen outside their dens in daylight.

9,000 CROWD

Two girls and a young man provided music and songs.

Several men and women, who said they were out of work, paraded around with placards before the meeting began. They were inside the outside of the Forum. One placard read, "I voted for Dief and have nothing but grief"; another read, "Too many men are unemployed in beautiful British Columbia."

But they were greatly outnumbered by the pro-Diefenbaker paraders who carried signs reading "Carry On, John," "Keep in step," and "Return a strong Diefenbaker government."

The prime minister referred in his remarks on a great national development plan, to the proposed development of the Columbia River. He recalled that when he was in Vancouver last year he had outlined what would be his policy on the Columbia.

TO ACT WITH B.C.

That policy had not changed. It remained as he had outlined it and was now the policy of his government. He said his administration is prepared to co-operate with the B.C. government in the proposed development project. It would be a scheme of joint co-operation between Ottawa and the provincial government.

In the Vancouver area among the 10 seats the Progressive Conservatives had four in the last House, Social Credit two, CCF three and Liberals one. The Conservatives are convinced after the meeting Thursday that they will take some seats from Social Credit and the CCF.

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that his campaign had "caught fire" in Vancouver in the last general election. Vancouver had produced the record crowd when his 1957 campaign produced the upset that turned out the 22-year-old Liberal government.

He said he would give the issues of the campaign, "What have we done?" he asked.

"Yes what have you done," shouted back a heckler. Momentarily it caused the prime minister to pause. It was the first serious heckling he has had this campaign.

He said when his government took office it found a policy of tight money strangling the economy. It had resulted in unemployment. "What have we done?" was his rhetorical question.

"Nothing," was shouted from several sections of the forum. "Shut up," others shouted at the hecklers.

His government had acted he said. It had set in motion an increasing housing program. It had cut taxes.

"We removed many from the tax rolls," he said. "You removed many from jobs," shouted a heckler.

"We eased tight money," said Mr. Diefenbaker. "We've still got it," shouted a heckler. The prime minister said his government had also acted to slow down immigration.

"No one is going to suffer as a consequence of unemployment as long as I am prime minister," he pledged solemnly. "We're suffering right now," another heckler shouted. But the applause greeting the prime minister's pledge drowned out the heckler.

KIWANIANS PLAN HOMES FOR ELDERLY AT DUNCAN

DUNCAN—Kiwaniis Club here has announced plans for a ranch-style housing project of 18 units for elderly folk to cost from $75,000 to $100,000. It is expected that only about $10,000 of the total will have to be raised locally. If the money can be raised this year, construction will start in 1959. The chosen site is on Trunk Road, three blocks east of the Trans-Canada Highway traffic light.

Famous Stamp Collection To Be Shown

Stamp collectors and visitors to British Columbia will have an opportunity of seeing a world famous collection during Centennial year in Vancouver.

As a Centennial project, the B.C. Philatelic Society has arranged with Gerald Wellburn of Duncan, B.C., to show selected pages of Canada and the provinces from 1851 on. As this collection has only been shown at international shows, collectors in or coming to Vancouver will have an excellent opportunity to view this outstanding display. The showing will be located in the Vancouver Public Library and will run from 11 to 5 p.m.

On May 30-31, June 1, 1958, the Vancouver Public Library will also be the scene of another exhibition, that of the Northwest Federation of Stamp Clubs, who will hold their 18th annual convention and exhibition here. General chairman of the affair is Mr. B. C. Binks, 465 East 12th Street, North Vancouver, B.C.

Socred Urges Sterling Deal With Britain

Canada should accept sterling to increase its trade with Britain, George Hahn, Social Credit member of parliament for New Westminster, told a political meeting at the Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall Thursday.

He was speaking on behalf of Socred candidates Noel Bell, Esquimalt-Saanich, and Elmer McEwen, Victoria. Mr. Hahn described the Conservative plan of diverting 15 per cent of U.S. trade to Britain as a "crackpot idea." It was like taking something from one pocket and putting it in another, he said.

Instead, he said, trade should be increased with Britain through acceptance of sterling and not diversion of United States trade.

Gov't Rejects Control Of Phone Firm by PUC

A CCF proposal that the B.C. Telephone Company be placed under control of the Public Utilities Commission was turned down by the government Thursday.

But Attorney-General Bonner indicated the government may consider the suggestion in the future.

A resolution introduced by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said the telephone company now is subject to "limited and ineffective" control by the federal board of transport commissioners.

32-12 VOTE

The resolution said the government should apply to Ottawa to have control of B.C. Telephone Co. transferred to the province.

It was voted down, 32-12.

Mr. Strachan said the federal Transport Board is concerned only with the "fiscal needs" of the company, not the service it provides.

"In every district in the province there is ample evidence something must be done about telephone service," the CCF leader said.

The purpose of the PUC is to protect the consumers of the province, "and the people definitely need protection and better service."

When government members stood up to vote against the resolution, Mr. Strachan jibed:

Penitentiary Terms Given Two Burglars

NANAIMO—Two men were sentenced in police court here Thursday on charges of breaking and entering and passing forged cheques.

Harold Pierce, 23, was sentenced to four years, and was told he could be charged as a habitual offender because of a record dating back to 1951.

Donald Watson, 20, was sentenced to three years. He said he had committed the offences because he was "short of money."

According to evidence the two men broke into the Thompson Lumber Company office Feb. 22 and stole a typewriter, cheque protector, blank cheques, adding machine, and a stamp machine.

CHEMAINUS — North Cowichan issued 15 building permits last month for new houses, representing a value of $117,091.

Telephone Operator Traps Young Burglar

ALBERNI (CP)—Police said Thursday a 17-year-old youth knocked a telephone from its cradle during a break-in at a hardware store here and an alert telephone operator tipped off police.

The Alberni youth pleaded guilty in juvenile court Thursday to charges of breaking and entering and theft. He was remanded for sentence.

The telephone operator advised RCMP when the store's phone signal repeatedly flashed at her switchboard. With office manager Jack Dunbar, police entered the store and found the youth crouched on a table. A loaded .22-calibre rifle, an air pistol, and ammunition were beside him.

Police said the dial on a safe in the store had been knocked off but not opened. Entry to the building had been gained through a window.

"They're all satisfied with the service of the telephone company."

"You can expropriate it when you become government," Attorney-General Bonner retorted.

Earlier, Mr. Bonner said the B.C. Telephone Co. is incorporated under a special federal statute which would have to be amended before control could be reverted.

The attorney-general said the government could not accept the resolution "at this time," but added that "some of the points of the Opposition leader may commend themselves in due course."

He asked Mr. Strachan for specific complaints that could be taken up with the Board of Transport Commissioners.

TOO FAR REMOVED

Gordon Dowding (CCF-Burnaby) said federal jurisdiction is "too far removed from the local scene."

"History shows the company has had every advantage from its preferred position," Mr. Dowding said.

It has not provided service commensurate with the profits it has enjoyed, the CCF member added.

Mr. Dowding said there is a "tight monopoly" in the price of telephone equipment.

"It is a wonderful field day for profiteers with inter-related companies," he said, "and the cost is paid by the subscribers."

"The people of B.C. are paying a heavy tribute for this private monopoly," Mr. Dowding said.

J. Donald Smith (SC-Victoria) said he believes rates charged by B.C. Telephone are "excessive," but said he could not support the resolution without more concrete evidence.

Mr. Smith suggested a legislative committee inquiry into the matter.

The Victoria member was the only government backbencher to speak in the debate.

Larry Laybourne, the managing director of Time International of Canada, was born in the city of Springfield, in the state of Ohio, in the U.S.A.

And prior to his present appointment, he had spent only a few years resident in Canada.

So I guess he can be forgiven.

But what did he do at the luncheon here Wednesday at which he was the principal speaker?

He turned up wearing a Royal Canadian Navy tie.

I say, chaps, Really, now, not done, you know.

Despite the fact he had purchased it, in all innocence, at a Calgary shop.

It did not take Mr. Laybourne long to learn of his faux pas.

Because, seated near him at the head table, were not one, but two admirals—Rear-Admiral Herbert S. Rayner, Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, and Rear-Admiral James C. Hibbard (ret.), FORMER Flag Officer, Pacific Coast.

They took the offence in good part, but it should be an interesting captain's mast.

I was intensely interested to learn via the Associated Press that Rush Roberts, last surviving member of the Pawnee Indian scouts for the U.S. Army, died at the age of 99.

No relation, but I knew Rush's uncle well.

He operated Ye Olde Pawnee Shoppe.

Word comes from B. Cox, 2680 Macdonald Drive, renewing speculation about the presence on this island of (you should excuse the expression) squirrels.

Writes B. Cox: "You were so positive about there being no squirrels around here that I waited to be sure they hadn't moved up-Island—they disappeared for the winter—but sure enough, they reappeared last weekend and greeted us vociferously. Friendly little characters, and they are NOT chipmunks."

All right, all right. But what's this about disappearing for the winter?

Winter in Victoria? A likely story.

And then there was the union man who said he'd be happy to be the first human being rocketed into space.

But naturally he wanted time-and-a-half for outer-time.

JUDGE CLEARIHUE

DEAN GAGE

College Head to Get Honorary UBC Degree

Judge J. B. Clearihue of Victoria and former Victoria College professor Dean Walter Gage will be among eight distinguished Canadians to receive honorary degrees at spring convocation ceremonies at University of British Columbia May 20-21.

It will mark the 50th anniversary of the university charter.

Judge Clearihue, a McGill graduate and member of the first Victoria College graduating class will receive an honorary doctorate of laws. He retired last year from the university board of governors after serving 22 years. Judge Clearihue has been chairman of the Victoria College council since 1947.

Dean Gage is best known to students as chairman of the joint faculty committee on prizes, scholarships and bursaries, and as a witty mathematics lecturer.

He is dean of administrative and inter-faculty affairs at UBC, and will also receive an honorary doctorate of laws.

BACK TO UBC

He received his master of arts degree from UBC in 1926, the year after receiving his bachelor of arts degree in mathematics. He joined the UBC faculty in 1926, and after teaching at Victoria College from 1927 to 1933, returned to UBC.

The congregation will also confer honorary doctorates of laws on Dr. A. E. "Dal" Grauer, president of the B.C. Electric Co. and present UBC chancellor; Mrs. Evelyn Lett, wife of the former chancellor, Chief Justice Sherwood Lett of the B.C. Supreme Court, and Mr. Justice A. E. Lord of the B.C. Supreme Court—all UBC graduates.

DISCOVERED MINES

Another UBC graduate, F. R. Joubin of Toronto, will receive honorary doctorate of science. He directed the discovery of 10 uranium mines in three provinces between 1953 and 1956.

Graduates of other universities who will receive honorary doctorates of laws, including Judge Clearihue, will be Ralph Pybus, Vancouver, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, and Dr. J. E. Wallace Sterling, president of Stanford University since 1949.

University officials said they also plan two special congregations in September to mark the B.C. centenary, with dates and names of those honored to be announced later.

House Fund May Prevent Court Action

Help of many Victorians may save Gerard Audet, 3148 Marx, from court action on a charge of violating the building bylaw by living in an unfinished house.

A "house-finishing" fund launched by F. J. Knudsen, 140 Olive, reached $522 today, and Mr. Audet, appearing in city court, estimated work would be completed in one month.

Assistant city building inspector Alex James told the court the house would be certified as safe for occupancy when it is stuccoed, doors are hung and floors finished.

An unemployed shipyard worker, Mr. Audet has been supporting his wife and seven children since November on $30 a week unemployment insurance and family allowance payments.

Magistrate H. C. Hall remanded the case to April 18.

Private School Boys Depart On U.K. Tour

Leaving Vancouver's International Airport "over-the-Pole" today on the trip of a lifetime are 25 boys and three masters of B.C.'s three main private schools.

The group forms the first schoolboy English rugby team in history to leave Canada and invade the heart of the world's rugby regime.

The team is made up of seven players from University School in Victoria, and nine each from Shawnigan Lake Boys' School and St. George's of Vancouver.

They will spend two weeks in Great Britain, playing a series of six matches with representative teams in both Scotland and England.

But this is only part of the trip. Headmaster of University School, J. J. Timmis, who will accompany the team as manager, feels the educational value of the trip is tremendous.

The boys will make extensive tours to such places as Oxford, Magdalen and Christchurch colleges, Mansion House (the home of the Lord Mayor of London), Edinburgh Castle, the House of Commons and Windsor Castle.

They also will be guests at the House of Commons and B.C. House in London where they will meet the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress of London, the Right Hon. Sir Dennis Truscott and Lady Truscott, and the Lord Mayor of Westminster, Sir Charles and Lady Norton.

The boys will play teams from Harrow, Lowlands, Midlands and Highland Reps of Scotland, Epsom and Eton.

Unemployment Total Drops 276 in Week

The total number of unemployed registered in the National Employment Office is now the lowest since early December, 1957, as the figure for the week dropped by 276, it was reported today.

The number of male applicants decreased by a further 130 and the number of unemployed women dropped for the first time since mid-summer 1957.

Total figures for the last two weeks show a drop in male unemployment from 4,279 to 4,149 and in female unemployment from 1,736 to 1,590.

Revised Welfare Approach Urged

Greater Emphasis Asked On Self-Sustaining Plan

A greater emphasis on assisting welfare cases to be self-sustaining, instead of merely doling out relief, was proposed for Victoria today by welfare administrator William Hooson.

In a report to city council, Mr. Hooson suggested a re-arrangement of staff to free a trained caseworker to such a project.

Explaining the philosophy of his department, he stated: "The traditional practice of the 'relief office' has been to dole out relief in as niggardly a manner as possible on the assumption that such a procedure would discourage the poor from applying for aid.

UNALTERED

"In many parts of Canada and the U.S., the name 'relief' has been changed to 'social or public welfare' but the attitudes and opinions of some administrators and the general public... has largely remained unaltered.

"Many still feel that poverty is solely due to laziness or personal defect... and is to be equated with sinfulness."

Such is not the case in B.C., he added. Over the last 20 years, welfare agencies have "humanized" their programs.

ON MERITS

"Each case is dealt with on its individual merits... assistance is considered to be the right of a citizen in times of need, and not just a handout by a benevolent community."

He said the object of rehabilitation services is to "... enable the individual to regain employment and become self-supporting." A trained caseworker can accomplish a great deal in this line, he felt... if the client is emotionally acclimated to the prospect of finding for himself.

He pointed out his department is overloaded at present.

Scouts, Cubs To Get Awards For Service

An Oak Bay Scoutmaster, a Victoria Scout and two Victoria Cubs will be honored in Vancouver, Friday, March 21, with awards for outstanding service and conduct.

The awards will be presented by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross.

Windsor Park troop, Scoutmaster W. D. McFarland, 1899 Townley, will receive the medal of merit for his organizational work and devotion to his troop over a number of years.

Wayne Boyd, 14, formerly of the Sayward troop in northern Vancouver Island, will receive a certificate of merit for gallantry, won when he saved the life of 16-year-old Delvin Flesch who fell through the ice while the boys were skating.

CATHEDRAL PACK

Cubs Charles Ball and Randy Fry, both aged eight and of the 2nd Cathedral Pack, will receive certificates of meritorious conduct.

Last year in March the boys found 2½-year-old Michael Braden laying face down in a hole filled with mud and water. They pulled him out and got treatment for the child.

Charles lives at 76 Menzies and Randy at 118 Menzies.

Guest speaker at the Scout dinner will be Times editor Bruce Hutchison and chairman will be Times publisher Stuart Keate, president, Boy Scouts Association of B.C. and the Yukon.

HOT STUFF FOR TOWN SHOPPERS

Temperature in the area shortly after noon today veered from 49 degrees at the weather office on Gonzales Heights to 61 degrees in protected downtown areas.

Forecast was for temperatures from 38 degrees overnight to 50 degrees today. Tonight will see more frost in the area, with temperatures in the high 20s to low 30s.

Forecast for Saturday is mostly clear skies and temperatures similar to today.

Sunshine, though not necessarily warm weather, has been a feature of March so far. To date there have been 96 hours of sun, compared with 63 during the entire month of February.

Suspended Sentence in Dare Break-In

Convicted of breaking and entering the Economy Steam Laundry on Jan. 15 with intent to commit an indictable offence, Harry Hoskin, 19, Mount Newton Cross Road, today was given a year's suspended sentence by Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson in Assize Court.

Mr. Justice Wilson strongly reproached the young man for committing the offence in the company of three companions.

"You have gone a long way down from a good beginning," he said. "If it had not been for the jury's recommendation of mercy I would have sentenced you to prison."

Hoskin's three companions, all with criminal records, are serving prison terms for the offence.

The accused told the court at his trial that he was goaded by his companions to enter the premises.

He said they threatened to spread the word he was "chicken" if he did not enter the laundry.

The justice asked the young man if he thought it was cowardly to refuse to enter the premises.

"If three men attacked and beat an old woman do you think it would be cowardly to refuse to assist them?" asked Mr. Justice Wilson.

"No," said Hoskin.

Two Missing In Boat For Week

A search was underway today for two men missing in a light outboard motorboat off the Vancouver Island coast.

The Royal Canadian Air Force and search and rescue centre said "in Vancouver the two men aboard the 15½-foot craft left Kelsey Bay, north of Campbell River, last week, and had not been heard from since.

The so far unidentified men did not state their destination.

Search officials said they believe the men had intended to take a coastal cruise.

It is doubtful, however, that the proposal will be put to a vote in the House.

The motion asks 'leave to amend another act introduced earlier in the session by Mr. Gregory that would grant full bargaining rights to civil servants.

Since this act is unlikely to pass second reading, the amendment may never reach the floor. But there may be discussion of it during second reading.

The Liberal member has urged the action in view of the present electrical workers' strike which he said could cripple the province's economy.

VICTIM OF MECHANIZATION

'Queen's' Reign In Park to End?

By MONTE ROBERTS

The remaining days in the reign of Beacon Hill Park's Queen appear to be numbered.

The Queen is the good-natured, well-mannered four-footed friend whose job it is to draw a two-wheeled, rubber-tired cart on behalf of the park's maintenance crew.

The Queen is a broad-shouldered, docile member of the equine family, and is the last working horse in the city of Victoria.

She's been on the job for the last three years, replacing a predecessor who went the way of all flesh.

Parks Board officials said to day it seems certain the Queen will fall victim to mechanization.

Upkeep appears to be too heavy for the work accomplished, although, in the original concept, a horse was used instead of a truck because her rubber shoes enabled her to cross lawns without damage to the grass.

But the rubber shoes also cause the rub—it costs $17.50 per shoeing, and replacements are needed four to five times a year.

Also, she is getting along in years—her exact age is not known—and is apt to pull up lame on occasion.

This, say park board officials, means an interruption in the flow of work, because there's no replacement available for her.

DEER ENCLOSURE

In her non-working hours, the Queen takes up residence in the deer enclosure, where she often occasions startled comments from city bred youngsters seeing their first honest-to-real equine.

But the Queen may soon be dethroned. And at that time, the cry could well be: "The Queen is dead—long live progress."

Mmm... Asparagus Spikes Make a Tempting Dish

By PENNY SAVER

Had a yen for asparagus today... fresh asparagus. Creamed with cheese. So, I went out to search for some and found just what I was looking for: Tender-looking spikes of asparagus, deep green and very fresh. You can enjoy it too, at only 39 cents a pound.

Apples are at their crispy, succulent best right now. Nothing's more refreshing than biting into a ripe Delicious apple that's been kept in the refrigerator an hour or so. They sell at three pounds for 49c. B.C.-grown McIntosh apples are two pounds for 35c and Rome Beauties are three pounds for 39c (down 10c since yesterday).

If there are kiddies in the house, you can delight them by buying a whole coconut and breaking it up into chunks for them to nibble at. Come to think of it... adults in the family will probably be just as pleased with the treat as the youngsters! Buy coconuts at 29 cents apiece.

With St. Patrick's Day in the offing (this Monday, to be exact) you'll want to stock up on a few candy favors for the children. You can buy dark or milk chocolate Irish pipes for them at just 15 cents each.

Paddy's well-known pig, also in chocolate, comes at 50 cents and you can buy a little sack, actually made of burlap, filled with candy "spuds"... at 50c a sack.

Here's something for the cocktail hostess who's worrying about having interesting tidbits to pass to her guests. She'll especially like these, because they require no preparation, save opening the jar and arranging in serving dishes.

I'm talking about "salami crisps"... crackers with a salami taste; French fried bacon rinds with an onion flavor; garlic puffs and cheese rings. All sell at 59c a jar.

Instead of using potato chips to dip into that favorite clam dip of yours, use "clam curls"... crisps with a definite clam flavor at 59c a jar.

Salted Mexican pumpkin seeds make for good nibbling and so do salted pistachios... the former at 59c a jar and the latter at 69c a jar.

Call me at 2-3131 if you'd like to know where to buy these items.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

'Just Plain Fat Under My Arms Bothers Me Most'

Q—"I am fat under my arms. My bra leaves a roll under the arm. This isn't a lump, it is just plain fat. I am overweight but this is the spot which bothers me most."

A—"You can build up the chest muscles with exercise and therefore increase the bust measurement. Plastic surgery also can remedy this situation."

Q—"I am not allowed to shave my legs and have dark hair which embarrasses me very much. My mother says if I shave my hair it will grow out thicker."

A—"This is not true. The hair will not grow out any thicker but the ends will be stubby when the hair grows out because of the cutting. However, it is too bad to be embarrassed about this since you can remove the hairs by shaving or with a depilatory. The only permanent method of removal is electrolysis."

Q—"I have very small spider-like veins on my upper legs. What causes these and is there any make-up to cover them?"

A—"Most women have some of these. Overweight and tight garments and long hours on the feet seem to make one more susceptible. There is a product which will cover them. If you wish to have its name, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for this information. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper."

Q—"I am 34 years old and have been married for 20 years. I have five children and nursed all of them. My bust is so flat. In fact I practically have no bust. Is there anything I can do? Can a doctor do something?"

A—"There is nothing I can do. Can a doctor do something?"

SPRING OPENING AT COLWOOD

Ladies' division, Royal Colwood Golf Club, held its spring opening on Thursday with a luncheon in the clubhouse followed by a two-ball foursome. Among those attending were, from the left, Mrs. Cliff Denham, Miss Ruth Jones, second vice-president, Canadian Ladies' Golf Union; Mrs. D. Ross, wife of the president of Colwood Club, and Mrs. Frank Skellings. Among special guests was Mrs. R. L. Pocock, honorary member of the club; Mrs. W. Mearns and Mrs. Jack Todd, members of the CLGU. Ladies' division captain, Mrs. H. McKenzie, presided at the luncheon.

'Free-Form' Line Feature of Show

From breath-taking Paris originals to natty sports ensembles, the T. Eaton Company fashion show Thursday took Miss and Mrs. Victoria right through spring to summer.

Importance of color—this year, golden sun-drenched hues through to "vibrant blues"—mixed with the importance of the new free-form, silhouette.

subtly shaped and softened, tempered with classic lines.

A new arrival from France was the chemise-line suit modelled by Helen Blanes. Designed by Madeline Casolino, the skirt is simple, leaving all fashion detail to the jacket, which shows a tailored pique front with low, back blousing.

Suit is of finest dress-weight wool.

Combining the chemise with the popular "middy look," Pam Young stepped into the spotlight wearing a navy dress with white linen middie collar and red and white polka-dotted tie silk scarf.

A pure silk "harem dress" was modelled by Joan Young. Deep pink roses patterned against a dark grey background was the fabric chosen for this stylish dress with a full, puffed skirt caught low in front with three self bows.

Chemise line coat was modelled by Jan Joslin. Harry Algo of Paris designed it with molded line in front and a separate, loose top at back, in French blue wool.

Sports ensembles featured a centennial tartan in slim jim slacks, jumpers, pleated skirts and jackets.

Printed chiffon created a drifting garden party dress for model Pat Hummel. With simple bodice and long sleeves, the dress featured a full, flowing skirt.

NOT RESERVED: Mrs. J. Crossley proved the chemise line is not reserved solely for the tall, willowy or young alone, when she modelled a green shantung dress in the new, loose-line styling, designed for the fashion-conscious matron.

Nona Damaske appeared in a striking dinner dress of pure silk in a fresh green and white floral print. Neckline was squared back and front and the figure-molding green velvet cummerbund was finished with velvet flowers.

The show, sponsored by the Women's Committee to the Art Gallery, was repeated this afternoon. Convener was Mrs. George Straith Jr. assisted by Mrs. B. G. Alley, Mrs. Lloyd McKenzie, Mrs. A. R. Alexander, Mrs. T. Juelsberg, Mrs. E. Shaw, Mrs. H. J. Greig and Mrs. Simon Markink.

Commentator of the show was Ida Clarkson and co-ordinator was Kay Ellis.

New Estates Tax Bill Disappoints The National Council of Women

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Council of Women Tuesday urged its members to tell election candidates they are disappointed in a new estates tax bill introduced at the last Parliament.

The council for several years now has urged the government to provide an exemption from succession duties of $50,000 for all estates. A letter to council members said this was not provided in the bill introduced in January and now being circulated for comment among groups interested in succession duties matters.

The government has said it will consider the comments on the bill before asking Parliament to make it law.

The legislation provides that all estates valued at $50,000 or less will be exempt from succession duties. But those of more than that amount receive exemption of only $30,000 of the total value, leaving the difference between the total value and the $30,000 exemption liable to duty, with exceptions for widows, dependent husbands and dependent children.

In the case of a widow, $60,000 of the estate is exempt from duty.

A limit also is placed on the amount of duty that may be collected from estates of more than $50,000. The maximum duty must not exceed half the difference between the total value of the estate and $50,000.

The council also expressed disappointment that the proposed bill does not acknowledge wives as marriage partners. The council urges that one-half a deceased husband's estate be conceded for tax purposes—as earned by his widow and as such would not be subject to succession duty when it passes to her on his death.

THE DAY CHRIST DIED

By JIM BISHOP

INSTALLMENT 6

It was past midnight now, and the eyes of the fishermen were heavy and their feet were slow. Besides, their Lord had said so much that their brains ached with remembering.

They did not complain because they sensed that this night they might receive the last of many lessons from the Messiah and they knew that they would have to remember, before they could apply the word. These men were very human. Grief for the suffering and impending death of his beloved Jesus must have stunned young John, just as the humility of his brother James surely prevented appreciation of his own adequacy for the job ahead.

Soon they were underneath the cemetery outside the wall, and in the darkness the sepulchres and the little ossuaries looked like so many broken teeth. Near here they crossed the stone bridge over the Brook Cedron and took the road on the far side toward the little gethsemane where they would sleep.

When they came abreast of the three great mausoleums—one of which was built to the memory of Absalom—which had been standing gaunt and friendless for 500 years, Jesus glanced briefly at them. He had condemned memorials to the dead a long time ago. Now He stopped again.

'Love One Another'
"This is My commandment." Again He said, "Love one another as I love you. No one can give greater proof of his love than by laying down his life for his friends. You are My friends." He looked around at the wan, bearded faces—"provided you do what I command you."

Surely, this often-repeated commandment to love had now taken root in the Apostles' hearts. It would not only sustain them during the hours that lay just ahead, but, of course, become the central theme and identification of Christians throughout the ages.

They were 200 yards from the little olive press in the miniature valley which separates Jerusalem from the Mount of Olives. For some time now, since they had crossed the brook, they had been bearing away from the city. At the gethsemane, the wall and the temple are a quarter of a mile to the west.

Few Fundamentals

He made no more pronouncements until He reached the stone caves with the big rotary presses, full of the odor of old oil. During this walk, He had been concerned, in the main, with imparting to His leaders the few basic fundamentals of His New Testament. These 11 would, with proper roots, produce new branches for the teachings of their Master, and they would impart His blessings and His sacraments.

It was complex and burdensome for these simple, believing men to try to understand these truths, and they were comforted to know that after Jesus had gone, the Holy Ghost would come to them and repose within them without their knowledge; that He would reveal many things to them and even sharpen their memories so that the words of Jesus would come back truly and clearly.

They turned off the little road near the juncture of the highway to Jericho, and moved easily in the moonlight.

Gagliardi Names Group to Study 60-MPH Limit

Appointment of a special group to investigate the possibility of increasing the speed limit on some B.C. highways to 60 miles an hour was disclosed today by Highways Minister Gagliardi.

The minister said the committee is headed by deputy highways minister Evan Jones, and includes other members of his department as well as representatives of the RCMP and B.C. Automobile Association.

The minister said he is taking a "cautious" approach to raising the speed limit in some districts.

"But if we can do it with the same amount of safety as today—okay."

9,000 Jam Auditorium To Hear PM

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Correspondent

VANCOUVER—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker addressing the biggest and noisiest meeting of his campaign to date disclosed here Thursday that the justice department is considering a draft of a bill of rights. It will be first submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada.

He aroused tremendous enthusiasm at the mass meeting and for the first time this campaign encountered a barrage of heckling and boos. There were more than 8,000 jammed into the Forum and about 1,000 more were turned away, with about 200 remaining to listen to the address over loudspeakers outside the main hall.

The repeated jeers and shouts designed to embarrass the prime minister and throw him off his stride only added to the excitement and entertainment for the huge crowd. Mr. Diefenbaker with the benefit of loudspeakers outshouted the hecklers.

ANSWERS PICKED

"I picked the ones I wanted to answer. That's the secret. It adds to a meeting," he said laughingly after he returned to his hotel suite.

The prime minister explained that the bill of rights would be submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada in the form of a reference. In this way it will be left to the highest court in Canada to determine the subjects which could be placed in a federal bill of rights without infringing provincial constitutional powers.

"How about Duplessis?" a heckler shouted. "He's your pal."

The prime minister attracted a crowd of about 3,000 more than attended Liberal leader Hon. L. B. Pearson's meeting in the same Forum at Vancouver. The huge audience at the Diefenbaker rally gave him more applause—interrupting him nearly 50 times—while the crowd also gave Mr. Diefenbaker more boos and heckled him more often than Mr. Pearson's crowd.

There was a carnival atmosphere at the opening of the Conservative rally. A lively orchestra and three vocalists

HAPPY FATHER AGAIN

Prince Rainier of Monaco holds his daughter, Caroline and waves happily from balcony in Monte Carlo today following birth of his first son to his wife, the former Grace Kelly. The princeling replaces his sister as heir. (AP Wirephoto.)

BECOMES HEIR

It's a Boy For Gracie And Prince

MONTE CARLO (AP)—Princess Grace of Monaco today gave birth to her first son—the new heir to the throne of the principality of Monaco.

The royal palace said the baby weighed 8½ pounds. He will be christened Albert Alexandre Louis Pierre.

The baby displaces his 13-month-old sister, Princess Caroline, in the succession to his father, Prince Rainier, Monaco's 31st sovereign.

The boom of the 101-gun salute—it would have been only 21 for a girl—set off wild rejoicing in the 367-acre principality on the French Riviera.

The births of both Caroline and Albert provided Monaco's 2,500 citizens with ample cause for rejoicing. Barring tragedy, they ensure the survival of the advantages of living in an independent, income-tax-free state that has no compulsory military service.

If Rainier were to die without a successor, the pocket principality, rolling in wealth from its gambling casino, would be annexed by France under a 1919 treaty.

Huge Naval Armada At Halifax

HALIFAX (BUP)—The present-day aircraft carrier will be replaced in the future by a combination aircraft carrier-missile launcher and submarine, Admiral Sir William W. Davis said on arrival here today.

Davis, commander in chief of the Royal Navy's Home Fleet, and NATO naval commander for the Eastern Atlantic area, also said that the nuclear-powered submarine will become the "dominating and all-important" factor in naval strategy.

Davis arrived at the head of a big armada of 29 British and Canadian warships. The combined fleet, the biggest to enter a Canadian port in modern times, is carrying out the most extensive naval manoeuvres ever held by British forces in the Atlantic.

Effect on Taxes, Homes Uncertain

By PETE LOUDON

Costs of operating Greater Victoria schools this year will increase by $734,510 to a new high of $5,887,671—a 14 per cent increase.

The estimates were presented to district municipal councils this morning.

Whether the increase will be reflected in local tax boosts, or whether a greater share of costs will be accepted by the provincial government, is still unknown.

Proposed changes in the basis of provincial-municipal cost sharing are before the B.C. legislature.

These changes, contained in the new Public Schools Act, provide for increased grants from the province, as well as increases in the basic contribution by municipalities.

STANDSTILL

Until the amount of the grants is made known, municipal and school board financing is at a standstill.

In a letter accompanying the estimates, school board secretary-treasurer T. L. Christie told each council:

"... estimated revenue and apportionment of costs to the component parts of the school district will be presented as soon as the necessary information on the new legislation is available."

Total 1958 expenditures are shown as $5,887,671, as compared to $5,153,161 in 1957 estimates.

Last year, almost half the total, $2,624,976, was raised by local taxation. Victoria paid 50.50 per cent, Esquimalt 5.20 per cent, Oak Bay 15.60, Saanich 26.76 and the unorganized area within the school district 1.94 per cent.

RIPPLE ROCK BLAST

Pickets Could Delay Explosion

A delay in setting off the earth's biggest non-atomic explosion at Ripple Rock, scheduled for April 5, could be caused by the teamsters' union.

Teamster official Joe Whiteford in Vancouver, said Thursday the union intends picketing the project as part of its contract fight with the Heavy Construction Association of British Columbia. The blast would be delayed only if workers employed in preparing it honored the pickets.

"We've decided to put pickets in," Whiteford said. "I don't know exactly when we'll do it, but I'm sure we will."

A problem facing the union is how to picket the project in Seymour Narrows of Georgia Strait. One suggestion is a picket boat.

"But we'll have to be careful," said one teamster official. "After all, we don't want to be blown up."

In spite of the threat from the teamsters, explosives are still being loaded into the tunnels and coyote hole drilled into the twin peaks of the rock, and when the switch is closed 2,750,000 pounds of Nitramex 2H will rip the top 40 feet off the rock. The size of the charge has been doubled to ensure destruction of the rock.

The project is under the jurisdiction of the federal public works department, and Works Minister Howard Green expects to be at the nearest observation post for the big blast.

MUST CLEAR OUT
All but authorized persons will be evacuated within a three-mile radius for the blowing up of the Seymour Narrows navigational menace. Zero hour is 8:30 a.m. PST April 5 if conditions are right. If they are not the big blow will be set back from day to day until they are. RCMP will direct evacuation.

When the packing job is completed engineers say some 1,200 yards of sandbagged gravel will be packed behind it. This is to ensure that the blast is upwards and there is no blow-back.

The big charge will be set off electrically from a bunker on Quadra Island, 2,500 feet away. The man who will probably set it off on signal will be F. B. Bickel of the Du Pont explosives department. The decision will be made by Dr. Victor Dolan.

NORMAN CRIBBENS IN THE LEGISLATURE

Randolph Harding, the good-humored CCF member for Kaslo-Slocan, has a problem on his mind.

He is wondering (already) whether the British Columbian of 50 years hence will be asking:

"What was a Social Credit?"

Mr. Harding is so concerned for the people of 2008 A.D. that he wants the legislature to keep a Hansard (verbatim) record of speeches so that they may be read and studied by the people of that advanced era—which may well include pneumatic, weather-proof clothes and a five-day week-end.

If we had a Hansard, said Mr. Harding, people 50 years from now would be able to learn about Social Credit—and why!

Premier Bennett, of course, could not miss this opportunity for a profound statement aimed at the historians of 2008 A.D.

"This period will live in the annals of the province as an era of progress and development."

He did not feel, however, that the historians of 50 years hence needed any Hansard to assist them. The government's record of achievement would be a standing monument to its foresight and wisdom.

Mr. Harding refused to be overawed by this grandiloquence. He insisted that, if the people of 2008 could read Hansard reports of speeches made under Secord rule, they might get a glimmer of what it was all about.

Social Credit J. Donald Smith, Victoria, broke ranks with the government and voted for a Hansard.

Teachers Planning 'Deluge Protest'

A "deluge protest"—flooding of local legislative members with objections against sections of the proposed new Public Schools Act—was planned Thursday by Greater Victoria Teachers Association.

An emergency meeting at S. J. Willis Junior High drew an estimated 400 members. Called on short notice, the meeting was unable to formally pass resolutions, but agreement on the proposed course of action was general.

FINES

The teachers oppose a clause which provides fines for anyone "trying to obstruct employment . . . or trying to dissuade a teacher from seeking a job in any district."

This would rule out "blacklisting" as is now being carried out in several B.C. school districts, including Greater Victoria. When no agreement could be reached on 1958 wage negotiations, teachers advised fellow workers in other parts of the province to avoid seeking work here.

U.K. Tories Lose Second Seat to Labor

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, shaken by his government's second defeat at the polls within a month, faced renewed Laborite demands today for him to "get out" and a threatened rank-and-file revolt among his own ruling Conservatives.

The Conservatives lost a seat to Labor in a key by-election Thursday in the "marginal" Kelvingrove constituency of Glasgow.

Just a month ago they lost the Lancashire cotton town of Rochdale—also to Labor.

Western Arms Proposal Fogs Summit Reds Say

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia today accused the Western powers of trying to "distract attention" from an East-West summit conference by seeking the resumption of disarmament negotiations within the United Nations.

Western 'Big Two' To Discuss 'Summit'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower and Prime Minister Macmillan will meet here in June to co-ordinate Western planning for a summit conference with Russia.

The White House announced Thursday that the meeting will be held June 9-10. By that time the issue of whether to hold a summit conference will likely be settled, officials believe, and most of them privately say they are sure there will be a conference.

Other subjects expected to come up in the Eisenhower-Macmillan sessions include co-operation between the United States and Britain in atomic energy developments, U.S. supplies of nuclear missiles for British bases, Middle Eastern problems, East-West trade and a review of conditions in the Far East.

Two girls and a young man provided music and songs.

Several men and women, who said they were out of work, paraded around with placards before the meeting began. They were inside the outside of the Forum. One placard read, "I voted for Dief and have nothing but grief"; another read, "Too many men are unemployed in beautiful British Columbia."

But they were greatly outnumbered by the pro-Diefenbaker paraders who carried signs reading "Carry On, John," "Keep in Step," and "Return a strong Diefenbaker government."

The prime minister referred in his remarks on a great national development plan, to the proposed development of the Columbia River. He recalled that when he was in Vancouver last year he had outlined what would be his policy on the Columbia.

TO ACT WITH B.C.

That policy had not changed. It remained as he had outlined it and was now the policy of his government. He said his administration is prepared to co-operate with the B.C. government in the proposed development project. It would be a scheme of joint co-operation between Ottawa and the provincial government.

In the Vancouver area among the 10 seats the Progressive Conservatives had four in the last House, Social Credit two, CCF three and Liberals one. The Conservatives are convinced after the meeting Thursday that they will take some seats from Social Credit and the CCF.

Mr. Diefenbaker recalled that his campaign had "caught fire" in Vancouver in the last general election. Vancouver had produced the record crowd when

DEATH PACT CLAIMED

Beauty-Queen Shot
6 Times by Lover

BEAVER, Pa. (AP)—A 25-year-old mill worker says he pumped six bullets into his beauty queen girlfriend because they had a secret pact that "one of us was going to die" if their romance broke up.

Theodore Pallow, on Friday, walked into this western Pennsylvania community and said: "I just killed a girl."

Police found the body of 21-year-old Miss Rosalie Leis at the foot of a tree not far from her home.

The comely blonde won several local beauty contests and in 1955 was runner-up to Miss Pennsylvania in the Miss Universe competition.

Pallow, estranged from his wife and seven-months-old child, faces a murder charge. He said his illicit romance "broke up my home" but "I loved Rosalie very much."

Pallow said he felt his relationship with Miss Leis was breaking up. He went to Miss Leis' home early Friday morning, and the couple walked down a lonely lane where Pallow said he shot her once.

He said she fell to her knees mage of the Vancouver engineering firm of Dolmage and Mason who handled the job for the federal works department.

The electrical impulse will ignite a fuse leading down the tunnel and up within the peaks of the rock to the explosive. Engineers estimate the peaks will blow just 1/80th of a second apart.

To get maximum effect on the rock, the day must be clear with low pressure and low tide occurring simultaneously. Otherwise the pressure of the explosion would be outward instead of upward.

Instruments have been set up within a 500-mile radius—as far away as Calgary—to measure the blast's signal through the crust of the earth. Seismologists hope in this way to learn some new secrets that may prove a Canadian contribution in this international geophysical year.

All marine life in the immediate area is expected to be killed. Fisheries department scientists will place some caged fish at various distances from the rock to measure blast effect on them. When the blow is over, fisheries vessels will move in to identify and count marine life blown to the surface.

Scores of newspapermen expected to cover the event will have to be accredited. Television, movie and press camera men will view the blast from a Quadra Island bunker 2,500 feet from the blast center, but reporters will be 7,000 feet away in another bunker on the shore of Vancouver Island.

Gov't Rejects Control
Of Phone Firm by PUC

A CCF proposal that the B.C. Telephone Company be placed under control of the Public Utilities Commission was turned down by the government Thursday.

But Attorney-General Bonner indicated the government may consider the suggestion in the future.

A resolution introduced by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said the telephone company now is subject to "limited and ineffective" control by the federal board of transport commissioners.

The resolution said the government should apply to Ottawa to have control of B.C. Telephone Co. transferred to the province.

It was voted down, 32-12.

Mr. Strachan said the federal Transport Board is concerned only with the "fiscal needs" of the company, not the service it provides.

"In every district in the province there is ample evidence something must be done about telephone service," the CCF leader said.

The purpose of the PUC is to protect the consumers of the province, "and the people definitely need protection and better service."

When government members stood up to vote against the resolution, Mr. Strachan jibed:

"They're all satisfied with the cost is paid by the subscribers."

"You can expropriate it when you become government," Attorney-General Bonner retorted.

Earlier, Mr. Bonner said the B.C. Telephone Co. is incorporated under a special federal statute which would have to be amended before control could be reversed.

The attorney-general said the government could not accept the resolution "at this time," but added that "some of the points of the Opposition leader may commend themselves in due course."

He asked Mr. Strachan for specific complaints that could be taken up with the Board of Transport Commissioners.

TOO FAR REMOVED

Gordon Dowding (CCF-Burnaby) said federal jurisdiction is "too far removed from the local scene."

"History shows the company has had every advantage from its preferred position," Mr. Dowding said.

It has not provided service commensurate with the profits it has enjoyed, the CCF member added.

Mr. Dowding said there is a "tight monopoly" in the price of telephone equipment.

"It is a wonderful field day for profiteers with inter-related companies," he said, "and
